Vanier Opens Session

Among main proposals of the speech at the opening of Parliament today:

- A new department to deal with forestry use and conservation.
- Granting of the franchise to Indians in federal elections.
- Legislation for a Canadian bill of rights.
- Revision of the Civil Service Act governing federal employees.
- Extension of the Trans-Canada Highway Act for an unspecified period beyond Dec. 31, 1961.
- Compulsory retirement of federally appointed judges at age 75.
- Extension of emergency gold mining assistance for three years.
- Changes in the National Housing Act.
- Measures to develop Columbia River hydro and to participate with British Columbia in joint development.
- Added status and responsibility for territorial councils of the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

OTTAWA (CP) — Plans to create a new ministry of forests to help spur national development and extension of the federal franchise to Indians highlight the government's legislative program disclosed today for the new session of Parliament.

The new department will be concerned, the Throne Speech said, "with affairs relating to the forests of Canada and their most effective utilization and conservation, and to assume responsibility for other related resources."

Government sources said a separate minister would be appointed to administer the new department of government.

The program, announced in the Speech from the Throne, also signalled further steps in Northern development with an increase in responsibility for the territorial councils and new oil and gas regulations to encourage Canadian ownership of these far-North resources.

Federal participation in the Trans-Canada highway program, lagging in some provinces, will be extended beyond the present cut-off date of next Dec. 31. For old age pensioners and recipients of the veterans' allowance living outside of Canada, the government plans to ease the present restriction which, in the case of pensioners, requires them to live in Canada at least six months of the year to collect payments.

FIRST CEREMONY

The speech from the throne was read in the Senate chamber by Governor-General Georges P. Vanier, officiating at his first parliamentary ceremony since his installation last September.

The speech said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposed bill of rights will be introduced again. Last session he Continued on Page 2

Two B.C. Judges Face Retirement

Two Supreme Court judges in British Columbia would be affected by the federal government proposal to force compulsory retirement at age 75. They are Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane, who is resident judge in Victoria, and Mr. Justice A. M. Manson, one-time B.C. attorney-general, who sits in Vancouver.

PITIFUL SCENES AT AMSTERDAM

15,000 Flee as Dike Bursts During Storm

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (Reuters)—A dike burst during a blizzard today, forcing the evacuation of all 15,000 citizens of an Amsterdam suburb.

Every available navy and civilian vessel raced into the flooded Tuindorp Costzaan district and snatched men, women and children from the top floors of their almost submerged homes.

The area is reclaimed land lying several feet below a canal leading to the North Sea. By afternoon the breach had been widened to 75 yards. In the flooded streets only the tops of trapped buses and automobiles were visible.

A small armada of boats worked feverishly to evacuate all the marooned victims by nightfall.

Rescue workers struggled against a swift current to save soaked, shivering women carrying crying babies. Calls went out for more hands to help in the rescue operations.

Many of the pitiful refugees clutched household pets and small personal belongings.

The Netherlands Red Cross Hospital ship Henri Dunant steamed to the scene to help in the mass evacuation.

HEAVY SNOW

Heavy snowfalls and slippery ice made the rescue work more difficult. Ice winds swirled over the desolate scene.

Gas and electricity supplies were cut off by the floods.

Dutch navy dinghies, rafts and barges all joined in ferrying the population from their flooded houses to safety in Amsterdam.

Engineers at the dike fought a losing battle against the breach. They said the waters would pour through until they were level with the North Sea canal.

No casualties were reported but one official described the scene as a "miniature flood."

The RCMP and other police forces have been searching for Chan since he disappeared in Vancouver Nov. 2, the day before he and his family were to be deported to Hong Kong.

Immigration Minister Fairclough said today that Harry Chan, a Vancouver lawyer, wrote to her last week asking permission for Chan to give himself up to Mrs. Fairclough today. However, Mrs. Fairclough replied in a letter to Mr. Fan that Chan should give himself up to the nearest immigration officer or the police.

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP said today it took action to prevent any possibility of Weldon Chan, Hong Kong-born Chinese sought for deportation, causing a disturbance at the opening of parliament.

The force took this action following rumors that Chan planned to surrender to police during the opening ceremony.

An official of the force said it is normal police practice to check out such rumors. RCMP officers stationed on Parliament Hill for the opening of parliament would keep their eyes open and if Chan appeared would place him under arrest.

Rocket to Probe Life on Planets

NICE, France (UPI) — Russia disclosed today it plans an attempt to send rockets toward Mars and Venus equipped with instruments to determine if there is life on those planets.

An official Soviet report presented to the first international space conference here by Soviet space expert Anatoly Blagonravov also announced prior plans for a new series of satellite launches and moon shots.

It said that the Soviets, at a "later date," but still in the near future, would attempt to probe Mars and Venus with life-detecting instruments.

Blagonravov also said that the Soviet Union is engaged in "preparation for manned flight into outer space." But he indicated the preparations may take some time.

Gibson Charge 'So Much Tripe' Says Minister

By PETE LOUDON
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston Wednesday challenged an audience of truck loggers here to have guts enough to investigate charges by Gordon Gibson of corruption in the handling of tree farm licences.

He trembled with emotion and his voice choked with rage as he described the attack of the former Liberal M.L.A. and champion of wide open logging as "just so much damn tripe."

Mr. Williston said he would quit his office the minute anyone could prove the Gibson allegation "money still talks" in the issuance of tree farm licences.

EXTEMPORIZED

Mr. Williston was slated to open the business sessions of the 17th annual convention of the Truck Loggers' Association at Hotel Vancouver. He had a prepared speech, already released to the Victoria newspapers, suggesting an investigation of the loggers' pet beef — the tax load on the forest industry.

But he threw it down in disgust and anger after the luncheon address by Mr. Gibson. Instead, speaking without notes, he lashed out at Mr. Gibson "and those who clap and roar approval" when the integrity of the forestry ministry is attacked.

Mr. Williston appeared hurt not only by the Gibson attack, but at the reception of the Gibson speech by the 550 luncheon guests who heard it, and on occasion applauded the colorful sallies of the man who once was to use his own words, "thrown out of the House" for offensive remarks.

HEARD IN SILENCE

The Gibson speech was of offensive. Liberal leader Ray Perrault, who was in the audience, said he half expected Mr. Williston would walk out in the middle of it.

The minister had sat through the attacks, head bowed, unsmiling, taking notes. He had showed no emotion as the applause came or as former Liberal federal fisheries minister James Sinclair said "Hear, Hear" when the barbs sunk home.

Mr. Williston heard his government described as over-ambitious, cheap offspring born out of wedlock (more colorfully worded by Mr. Gibson), enemies of the truck loggers, who would emasculate any men who seek opportunity in their own land — a one-man power-corrupted government which forbids free speech — candidates for a firing squad and proponents of a forestry

'We Are the Top Military Power'

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev said today Russia has blueprinted such "incredible" weapons it can discharge one of every three men in its armed forces in the next year or two.

In a three-hour speech to the Supreme Soviet the premier painted this picture:

"Incredible weapons" are being designed by Soviet scientists. "The arms we already possess are formidable, and those which are, so to speak, about to appear, are even better, even more formidable."

"The weapons which are being designed and which, as one says, are in the portfolios of scientists and designers, are incredible weapons."

The Soviet Army has power that no other army ever has possessed; rockets are taking the place of bombers and the production of bombers will cease. Production of industrial and consumer goods, together with labor productivity, increased last year more than the current seven-year plan called for. The United States is no longer the world's leading military power.

International tensions are lessening, and agreements are possible at the May summit meeting in Paris.

WON'T WAIT

Khrushchev told the Supreme Soviet that Soviet armed forces are currently at 3,623,000, down from a high of 11,000,000 in wartime and nearly 6,000,000 in the 1949-55 period.

Now, he said, plans are for a cut to 2,423,000 men. As he projected it, this reduction of 1,200,000 from the current figure will be brought about without waiting for the Western powers to join the Soviet Union in a disarmament program. Disarmament talks are due to start at Geneva this Spring.

AHEAD OF ALL

Khrushchev's demobilization announcement climaxed a long review of Soviet achievement during the last year in which he assured the 1,300 deputies that Russia is ahead of all other countries in the development and assembly line production of intercontinental ballistic missiles of various types. The premier said his government is able to cut its armed forces without hurting its defence potential because of the strength of its nuclear weapons.

STRONGEST IN HISTORY

"The Soviet Army wields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

"Now it is quite clear," he told the applauding delegates, "that the United States of America is not the world's most powerful military power. We are not trying to sweat anybody, but these are the facts."

But the "total trend" in international affairs was one of lessening of tension. His agreement with Eisenhower, President de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan to begin the first of a series of summit conferences in Paris May 6 was an important sign of this.

"We are deeply convinced that, having a mutual desire to settle all disputed questions, one may come to an agreement."

REORGANIZING NOT DISARMING

Less Men, More Machines

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev is reorganizing rather than disarming.

His claims to disarmament in fact, are substantially contradicted by his words about the growth of Russia's nuclear weapons and rocket power.

These points highlighted initial reaction in official quarters here today to Khrushchev's speech before the supreme Soviet.

His announcement of a manpower cut did not come as a surprise. Earlier remarks by Khrushchev — and the labor needs of Soviet industry and agriculture — had foreshadowed such a move. Khrushchev claimed the manpower cut was a contribution to disarmament but at another point in his speech, Khrushchev said that since no agreement has been reached with the Western powers to stop production of nuclear weapons "we are compelled to continue this production."

In a third section he argued that "the Soviet army wields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

In other words, the manpower cut by Khrushchev's own testimony does not mean a cut in striking power. What it obviously signifies is a shift from reliance on masses of men to reliance on masses of machines and nuclear weapons.

His emphasis on disarmament is construed rather as a means of making propaganda out of necessity.

The necessity, authorities here said, arises from the fact that as a result of the loss in birth rate in the war, Russia is developing a manpower shortage.

Therefore the Soviet government needs to switch men from the armed forces to industry and agriculture whenever it can do so without impairing Soviet security.

Aid Rushed to Peru As Big Quake Kills 63

LIMA, Peru (AP)—Supplies and other aid were rushed today to Arequipa, victim of Peru's second severe earthquake in less than a month. At least 63 persons were reported killed and 200 injured in the south Peruvian city. Communications with this capital were broken and officials said the toll might be much higher. Five plane-loads of medical supplies were loaded. President Manuel Prado and Premier Pedro Beltrán planned to accompany one of the planes. Many of Arequipa's 80,000 residents slept in the streets following the last of three tremors Wednesday that levelled houses and stores and knocked over telephone poles. About 60 per cent of the city and its suburbs was reported destroyed or badly damaged. Officials said the city's morgue was filled with bodies dug from the debris and rubble. Immediate identification was impossible in many cases because of the mutilated condition of the victims.

Planes and troops arriving with rescue equipment and relief supplies found large sections of the city and suburbs without water supplies and communication facilities. The shocks, felt in Bolivia and Chile, also cut off several highways leading into Arequipa, which is about 460 miles southeast of Lima.

THREE TREMORS

Most residents of the city, located at the foot of the El Misti volcano, were asleep when the first tremor came early Wednesday.

Lasting about 50 seconds, it caused the major destruction. The second and third shocks came at noon and 4 p.m., but by then most of the people were huddled in the streets and clear of falling walls and roofs.

VISIT to Washington is expected by West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer from March 14 to 16. It was also reported he may go on to Tokyo from Los Angeles.

'A-G'S OFFICE ADVISED GAGLARDI'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Affidavits filed in Supreme Court here state that British Columbia Highways Minister P. A. Gagliardi followed advice from the attorney-general's department when he paid out money to a contractor contrary to a court order.

The affidavits, sworn by Neil McDiarmid, a solicitor for the attorney-general, and Alan Rhodes, highways department comptroller, were filed in connection with an application to compel the highways minister for contempt of court.

In dispute is the highways department's payment of $75,696 to Union Contractors, Ltd., for work on a Trans-Canada

Highway project near Revelstoke, B.C.

Mr. Justice T. G. Norris, of the Supreme Court, ordered that the money should go to a trust company to satisfy Union's creditors. Mr. McDiarmid said in his affidavit he advised Rhodes that Mr. Gagliardi was not bound to any action by Mr. Justice Norris' order.

HAWAIIANS ESCAPE AS VOLCANO ERUPTS

KAPOHO, Hawaii (UPI)—Kilauea volcano erupted with a fiery blast of lava Wednesday night a few hours after 300 persons were evacuated from this nearby village. Lava spouted 350 feet into the air.

A stream of bubbling lava a half mile long lit up the area with a red glow early today, but seismologists at the nearby Volcano Observatory said the flow was away from populated areas.

TO MEET RED THREAT

West to Pool Economic Force

PARIS (AP)—The free world took its first tentative steps Wednesday toward pooling its resources to meet the threat of Communist economic penetration in the world's undeveloped areas.

A 13-nation economic conference adopted U.S. proposals for a co-ordinated aid program for underdeveloped countries. But it was also agreed that settlement of European trade conflicts must take priority.

The conference adopted three resolutions which would:

1. Set up a committee to consider replacing or expanding the Organization for European Economic Co-operation into a 20-nation group to co-ordinate Western aid plans.

2. Form an interim group of eight countries, plus the European Common Market Commission to promote immediate aid until the larger body is formed.

3. Give priority to settlement of European trade conflicts.

The result was a compromise between the American efforts to increase European participation in aid to underdeveloped areas and Europe's insistence that internal economic conflicts must be settled first.

SPADE WORK

Much of the spade work for the compromise was done by

6 Nations Set Press Parley

PANAMA CITY (UPI)—A meeting of newsmen from six American nations adjourned here Wednesday after deciding to hold a hemisphere-wide newsmen's conference in August in Lima, Peru.

Professional associations in the United States, Canada, Argentina, Colombia, Peru and Venezuela were asked to appoint members for the committees which will prepare topics for the midsummer conference.

Canadian Finance Minister Fleming, who earlier had suggested that the proposed committee's terms of reference should be kept deliberately general to give it more leeway in its operations.

In an interview after the discussions, both Fleming and Trade Minister Churchill stressed that one of Canada's major aims is to participate more actively in organizations drafting Western trade policy.

Fleming described the session as a definite advance in coping with the pressing trade and economic problems facing the non-Communist world.

"There has for some time been a grave danger that the two groups would drift farther and farther apart. There was even the possibility of a trade war."

"This meeting has served to bring the rival groups together. The machinery for future consultations has been created."

A Vote for TCA

IN THE CONTEST TO SEE which airline will serve the historic Victoria-Vancouver-Seattle route, the Harbors and Transportation group of the Chamber of Commerce has come down unanimously on the side of Trans-Canada Air Lines. As a prime carrier, with an accident-free record of service to this community, TCA finds its friends rallying to its support in the face of a determined bid by the younger, rival Pacific Western Airlines.

The national airline has strengthened its hand by serving notice that it intends to fight to retain the service. In unequivocal terms, TCA says that it will resist the PWA application and improve its own service by the installation on the run of five Viscounts, capable of carrying 60 passengers apiece.

In support of the Chamber resolution, Mayor Scurrah says that he will oppose any action which would tend to downgrade the capital city and relegate it to a "feeder" service. In reply, Mr. Gordon Brandreth of PWA says that this is what it is today, in view of the fact that the bulk of Victoria-Vancouver traffic consists of the "moving of bodies" between the two cities with a comparatively small percentage of on-going, transcontinental passengers.

In many respects, the local service may be compared with that in the nation's capital. Ottawa is a capital city, located between the big centres of Toronto and Montreal. Passengers must change planes and get off the big, main lines before proceeding to Ottawa. Similarly, Victoria is a capital city located between Vancouver and Seattle. Like Ottawa, it is presently served by Trans-Canada. To separate it from the prime carrier could only be regarded as a retrograde step.

This would appear especially true in the matter of acquiring better runways and terminal facilities. Surely the national airline is in a better position to make demands of this kind on the Federal Department of Transport than a privately-owned, commercial operation.

Pacific Western's best hope, it would seem, lies in a reported policy change of the Transport Board, which is said to lean towards "feeder" lines for regional service, with TCA and CPA holding exclusive rights on the transcontinental routes. But no airline, public or private, can operate in a climate of hostility. Greater Victoria has said clearly that it wants TCA to carry on. Its record of reliability, its ability to serve the area at peak periods, and its superb pilot-training facilities all combine to justify this confidence.

It Stays Here

ONCE MORE EFFORTS OF Vancouver interests to have head offices of the Motor Vehicle Branch moved to the mainland have drawn a sharp protest from the Victoria Automobile Club manager. He may reasonably expect general backing from this community.

The Motor Vehicle Branch headquarters are properly located in the capital. There is no reason for their transfer stronger than the argument that they should stay at the centre of government.

Here is just another instance in which Vancouver, seeking to grab institutions located in Victoria, should be given the polite but firm admonition: "Hands off!"

Setting Down Roots

HALFWAY THROUGH WORLD Refugee Year, which ends next June 30, the United States has made a sample check to determine how those admitted to the country several years ago have fared.

They selected 50 of the men and women who came from Europe on the first Second-World War refugee ship in October, 1948.

Of the 50, the investigators found most had become United States citizens and all but five had taken out papers leading to citizenship. More than 40 now own their own homes, most own their own cars and television sets and about half have married since arrival.

The prevailing sentiment expressed by those polled is one of thankfulness for the freedom they are allowed in the new world.

The sampling indicates a high degree of assimilation among those who came to the United States a little over 11 years ago. They have not all found the work on this continent which they pursued in their homelands, but they appear satisfied with their present jobs.

The questionnaires sent out in the inquiry cover a very small fraction of the 713,530 refugees admitted to the United States since the war. They do, however, suggest the trend.

The refugee program, if the 50 can be judged as typical, has been doubly successful. It has given a home to the homeless, and it has added strength to the nation.

The latter point is reduced to economic terms by the estimate that income tax from former refugees settled in the United States by the end of 1952 amounted to three times the administrative cost of the displaced persons' program.

These are American figures. It seems reasonable to assume that a survey in Canada would show comparable results. On the basis of the American sampling, the refugees are more than carrying their weight. Which may suggest that we could do much more than we are doing in providing the opportunities to the homeless of Europe and Asia to find new lives in the new world.

Before It Is Too Late

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA branch of the Canadian Institute of Forestry is undertaking a wise and far-seeing project in its present campaign to have sample stands of trees in their natural state set aside for preservation and study.

The idea is to reserve permanent plots of at least ten acres, with another ten acres of protective perimeter, as natural laboratories for the study of various forest species. The areas may be maintained as parks—although the public would be discouraged from using them—or as private trusts. They would be of immediate use to forestry engineers and botanists, and as the years go by would become invaluable as examples of virgin growth not to be found in any other locality.

Already Europe, the Middle East and parts of North America can show no samples of the tree cover which once was present. Even in British Columbia, it is reported that there is no sizable virgin stand of yellow pine left, and it is becoming increasingly difficult to find undisturbed examples of certain other natural forest types.

The move to preserve "natural areas" is taken none too soon. It is to be hoped that the provincial Government and the forest industry will co-operate by aiding the establishment of protected stands of various species in various climatic regions for the benefit of present and future research.

Runways for Safety

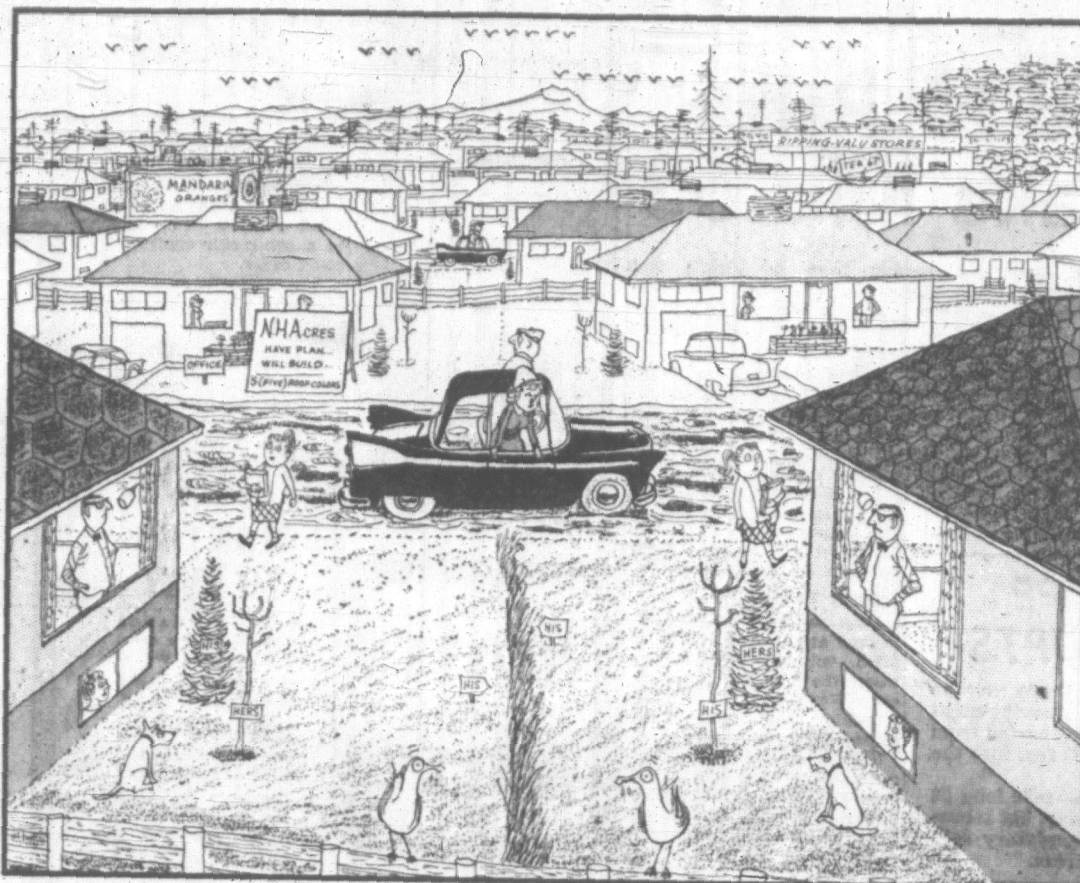

FOR THE SECOND TIME IN two days an aircraft has been forced to by-pass its Vancouver terminal and land elsewhere.

In the first recent instance, the passenger plane had to go to Comox, where RCAF facilities are adequate for landing. In the second, the aircraft proceeded to Seattle.

The incidents point up the need for extended runways at Patricia Bay. Vancouver's International Airport is fog-shrouded often enough to make adequate landing facilities at Pat Bay a highly desirable safety factor. Why should Canadian aircraft be forced to come down on American soil, or be required to use Air Force strips where flying regulations may differ from those of civilian airports?

Apart from other important economic considerations, aren't the two emergency landings elsewhere strong enough argument for the development of suitable runways at Patricia Bay?

"Great Scott, Harold... think! I'm sure ours is around here somewhere... two-tone pink stucco... aluminum windows... oblong design... roman brick planter... blue-grey roof..."

FROM OTTAWA

Some Awkward Questions Will Be Asked

By VICTOR MACKIE

IT should be a hectic and news-making Parliament that meets today for the third session since the election. The half-way point until the next election is generally the third session. By now the opposition has regrouped and rallied to return to the fray in fighting form. There are many issues. The Liberal and CCF parties of the opposition, sitting to Mr. Speaker's left, will not lack for ammunition. Defence will be one of the main fighting grounds. The Government, anxious to proceed with disarmament, finds itself in the awkward position that it must decide to add to its expenditures by ordering new equipment for the armed forces if they are to be kept in a state of readiness.

The RCAF in particular, with its obsolete CF-100, will require new long range jet interceptors. The Government reportedly is looking at various American models. Its decision last year to scrap the Canadian-made CF-105 means that it must buy American or buy British if it is to equip the air force with an up-to-date aircraft capable of intercepting fast-flying Russian bombers.

New Thoughts

When the Government decided to scrap the CF-105 it did so on the grounds that by the time it was ready for front-line duty the day of the manned interceptor would be past. But Canadian and NORAD chiefs of staff apparently are advocating that Canada must have a new plane capable of manning our northern defences and intercepting bombers.

The NORAD chiefs do not subscribe to the theory that the day of the manned bomber is past. Should the Canadian Government decide to buy American—after scrapping the Canadian-designed and made, CF-105—it will have to answer some awkward questions in the Commons.

Opposition Leader Pearson is expected to voice his demand for a searching parliamentary probe into national defence policy. Statements by Defence Minister Peakes have helped confuse the country. There are conflicting reports on how much control Canada will have over American nuclear warheads stored in this country and stored in Europe for use by Canadian forces abroad.

There are two factors to be considered: custody of the warheads and control of their operational use. Canada insists that if at least it cannot have custody under American law it must have control over their operational use by Canadian forces. Defence policy will be a live subject for debate right up until the end of the next election.

Tight Money

Tight money, the Government's general fiscal policies, and high interest rates, all will be raked over by the opposition.

Dr. Firestone's forecast that the boom will continue in 1960 and 1961 with a sharp recession expected to follow in 1962 will attract considerable attention from the opposition, as will Mr. Fleming's recent speech in which he warned against inflation and trade competition from the European bloc and Russia. His warning that a heavy demand for capital next spring could lead to even tighter money than now exists has not gone unobserved.

Trade

The Government's trade policies are sure to come under attack. The recent letter by W. J. Parker, president of the Manitoba Pool Elevators, addressed to the Prime Minister, has been duly noted by the opposition. The letter was sent not only on behalf of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta pools but also on behalf of the United Grain Growers Limited.

It urged the Government to make a more determined effort to trade with the Japanese so that the Japanese in turn would be in a position to buy more wheat.

Immigration policies too are to be singled out for criticism. All in all it will be an interesting and eventful session.

Attention

Throughout a session attention is focussed on the Commons, the lower house. But at the opening all eyes are on the upper house, the Senate, scene of the ceremonies. Seating capacity in the senate chamber is normally 102. But for the reading of the speech from the throne it is raised to 362 by placing benches on the floor.

More than 800 invitations are sent out, but between 50 and 60 per cent are declined. It is the job of the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, Major Lamoureux, to find room for all those who attend.

Dignitaries

The number of dignitaries entitled to an invitation has increased considerably. A few years ago only 24 countries had representatives at Ottawa, but now 50 are represented. There are also more privy councillors and of course, more wives and daughters who like to put on their formal gowns and attend.

But the Senate chamber remains the same size. Each year the problem of crowding—in the invited guests on the main floor becomes more difficult.

Cabinet

A mass of detailed paper work must be completed prior to and during a session. Members of the Cabinet have been meeting in full session or in committee almost daily during recent weeks as they organized for today's big event.

In the Opinion of Our Correspondents

'Comes the Explosion'

I would dare to be observant and would dare philosophize

On the atom bombs and missiles and the radiant active skies;

Of the manic depressives screaming for more nuclear tests;

Letting loose the Strontium-90, poisoning milk in women's breasts.

And my mind's eye sees descending on the foolish human race

Horror, dread, and fire and brimstone, leaving naught but empty space.

I read "The mills of God grind slowly." I think they can be plugged by "hate."

When they stop "Comes the Explosion." Scientists would call it Fate.

But too late.

Saanich Zoning

Your editorial in which you discuss the commercial rezoning of five acres at Cordova Bay is timely.

The Saanich Council, after much discussion, several hearings, and considerable time lapse did finally rezone this property.

To zone or not to zone is certainly not the simple matter it sometimes appears to be.

The Council has to consider very many factors if it hopes to arrive at a just decision. For instance, first and foremost, what is the expert opinion of the various planning bodies?

Will it create a traffic hazard? How do the people of the area affected feel?

Will the zoning be in the general public interest? Will service cost to the municipality be excessive? What about tax returns? How does such zoning fit into the general over-all plan?

Secondly, the Council can get all the expert opinion of the various planning bodies, obtain the views of the people at the public hearing and by personal means, discuss the zoning in committee and even at the several readings of the bylaws. Then come to a final decision.

The Council makes the final decision and must accept the responsibility for it, right or wrong.

It cannot say, we were misguided by the experts, if things go wrong. So, generally speaking, it seems to me the second course of action is in the best interest of the public. The whole question of zoning is becoming the most vexed and thorny problem the Council has to face and will continue to be so.

Referring again to your editorial: at the end you say "A risky precedent has been set." The property referred to is carrying on something unique in this area and could grow to large proportions. As far as I am concerned definitely no precedent has been set.

Long Way From Paradise

In reference to your editorial on Sweden, January 8:

It might be asked whether this is a welfare state or a state of welfare.

The former but definitely not the latter.

A state of rich and poor, of three social groups. 1. "Better situated." 2. "Middle Class." 3. "Average worker."

It is a gross understatement to say this isn't paradise. A country which is experiencing vastly increased robberies, juvenile delinquencies and the highest consumption of alcohol in the world (1957). Since 1953 their cost of living rose 9 per cent and suicides increased 19 per cent.

This Swedish version of capitalism, CCF style, ought to be a lesson to those workers who think that the evils of the exploitation system will be solved by a few crumbs which are promised to those who produce everything.

So long as everything has to be paid for, that is, all useful things are produced for sale and for profits, we will have misery that such an economic relationship engenders.

LONDON:

Daubed Walls

THAT it is obviously the work of crackpots and unorganized hysterics does not reduce the danger of swastika daubing in London and elsewhere. The damage done so far does not go beyond a broken window and some smudged walls. But the foreign correspondents are already sending the bad news home and it will not everywhere be taken as calmly as it is here. A new line in offensiveness has also come to light—a series of insulting and threatening telephone calls to members of Parliament.

At any rate there is some consolation in the fact that this beastly outbreak is showing itself in other countries that also have their hysterics and crackpots.

If the police could find a couple of the culprits and they could be dealt with as conspicuously as were the hooligans of Notting Hill, the daubing would quickly cease—but the police have plenty of other problems on their hands just now and will have to depend on good luck and good citizenship if they are to nip this crazy anti-Semitism in the bud.

Should a place be made in the statute books for an act specifically designed to make racial incitement an offence?

Urgent Debate

The question is being debated with some urgency in the various committees and organizations concerned with race relations, and is to be taken up in detail at a conference in Sheffield to be organized by the Workers' Educational Association in a few weeks' time.

This is not quite the same proposal as that put forward by Mr. Fenner Brockway, whose draft bill is concerned with race discrimination as a whole.

The new plan takes the form of a draft bill prepared by the National Council of Civil Liberties and is directed specifically at incitement either in print or in public speeches, based on race, creed or color. There is some hope that a Tory back-bencher may bring it in as a private member's bill with Labor and Liberal support.

The plan has the strong backing of Miss Claudia Jones, the editor of the West Indian Gazette. She is one of two vice-presidents of the new-racial Friendship Co-ordinating Council which was set-up after the troubles at Notting Hill.

Boost Morale

She says: "A racial incitement bill coming from Britain, the heart of the Commonwealth, would be like a tocsin, boosting morale everywhere in the Commonwealth among those fighting race discrimination."

Miss Jones thinks the Public Order Act of 1936 inadequate for the task. But her fellow vice-president on the IRFCC thinks otherwise.

She is Dr. Eleanor Ettlinger, who came to this country as a refugee from Germany after the Nazis had shot her uncle, a former foreign minister. She thinks that if the police would invoke the Public Order Act more frequently and more vigorously it is quite sufficient to deal with Britain's racists.

Her medical practice is near Notting Hill and she went to all the Mosley meetings during the election campaign, brandishing a copy of the act. But basically, she feels, the solution is one of education: "The ideal society will be one in which people like Mosley can speak and not a soul will come and listen."

Aircraft Mergers

The aircraft industry is getting used to its first great amalgamation—between de Havillands and Hawker-Siddeley—which was announced three weeks ago. Now it is waiting for the announcement of the second.

This one is expected to be between English Electric's aviation division (which made the Canberra and is now working hard to bring the Lightning fighter program up to date) and Vickers-Armstrong (Aircraft) Ltd. of Viscount fame.

English Electric made overtures to the de Havilland organization early last month; and they and everyone else seem to have been surprised by the sudden elopement of that firm with Hawker-Siddeley. But if they now bring off their union with Vickers, possibly including others like the Bristol Aircraft Company, the Government will have the two giants it has been seeking.

It will, of course, take time and strong management to make them into united firms. Many of the component aircraft firms are bound to go over to general engineering in the process. For shareholders this may turn out to be more profitable than many now expect. At least so the boards of English Electric and Hawkers seem to think.

Nuclear Weekend

What has been called the "nuclear weekend" came to its formal conclusion at Speakers' Corner. Those who had supported the determined martyrs of Harrington assembled in the sad, pearl-rimmed twilight of Hyde Park and joined forces with students from the Combined Universities' Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament who had spent two days in Bloomsbury discussing the more intellectual aspects of the problem.

The listening crowds were large. They easily swamped the Salvation Army, the Erskine Childers Association, and supporters of a banner proclaiming "Flee From the Wrath to Come." The only gathering which nearly held its own was something to do with colored workers.

Later the principal figures in the campaign plunged through the darkness to Grosvenor Square to meet Canon Collins, fresh from the pulpit at St. Paul's, in a fierce knot outside the American Embassy. There they delivered a letter addressed to Mr. Eisenhower protesting at the United States Government's decision not to renew its ban on nuclear tests. Among the distinguished signatories of the letter were two bishops, Dame Edith Evans, Cecil Day Lewis and his wife, Barbara Hopworth, Sir Herbert Read and Lord Simon of Wythenshawe.

The Examples

ONE evening, during the Christmas season, I listened to a conversation about the examples of human honesty and kindness which make such an impression when one is travelling in another country.

It reminded me of two small incidents which I saw in England in 1951.

The first happened in London, on a double-decker bus.

My husband and I were sitting down below when we noticed a young man swing himself on to the moving bus just after the conductor, who collects the fares, had climbed the stairs to the upper deck.

As the young man wasn't going far, the bus reached his stop before the conductor had come down to collect his fare.

To our astonishment, the young man handed his pennies to a passenger sitting by the door, and said, "Give this to the conductor, will you? This is my stop now."

"GOSH, what honesty! And none seems surprised," I said to my husband. "I'm sure that, in Canada, he'd have hopped off without paying, and thought it smart to pull a fast one."

Perhaps I was harsh in assuming this, but I've often thought of that young man and wished he could know that his little honest act would be mentioned and discussed thousands of miles away.

For that is what does happen in such cases. Through letters and conversations, we hear about the honest taxi-driver in New York, the helpful clerk in Japan, the motherly waitress in Australia. All these little tales go round the world. For few of us are so devoid of feeling that we don't appreciate the better qualities when we meet them.

For instance, I shall never forget the quality of determination as I saw it on the outskirts of Southampton on a bleak January morning.

We were in our small rented car, and I was grumbling because I was so cold that my feet and legs were completely numb. I was moaning about no heater in the car, and saying that I didn't know how much longer I could stand the cold.

In the midst of my moaning, I saw a woman of at least 70 coming down the road in what I can only describe as a bath chair powered by a motor. Her face was crimson with the cold, and she was wearing what looked like two overcoats and half a dozen scarves. Like Jehu of the Bible, she was driving furiously!

"My God, look at that," said my husband as, with happiness written all over her face, she bowed along the street, and even nipped in and out of the traffic every now and then.

I looked, and as I looked, I saw that her extraordinary chair had the familiar L for Learner beside the licence!

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

On Making Decisions

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

A woman writes that when she was a girl, her deeply religious father taught her, when making every small decision, to put it up to Christ, but as she grew older she decided that "Jesus wouldn't care what I did in so small and unimportant a matter." So, when she couldn't decide whether to buy the red blouse or the blue one, or whether to do the washing or the cleaning first, she would toss a coin for it. As she said, "such decisions are so unimportant that they do not matter one way or the other." Also, she says that in many cases, if one thinks a minute one can see that there is only one logical decision to make, and hence why not make it quickly and have it over with? Why spend the next hour puzzling over it?

This woman is so wise, and thousands of the women we doctors see are so foolish when they spend, as they often do, endless time making and remaking a decision which was of very little importance anyway. The really efficient person makes thousands of decisions a month without any effort. I have known persons who went into a nervous breakdown apparently because they couldn't make a decision in even so simple a matter as whether to put on first their right or their left stocking!

I was just reading what Dr. Milton, of New York City, gives to his patients when they want to reduce. He allows them to eat pretty much what they ate before, but with certain modifications. They can't have more than one slice of bread with each meal, and he feels that this is very important. At breakfast, the doctor allows a little cereal (without much cream and sugar), or he gives a slice of toast, but not both the cereal and the toast. A woman can have a small baked potato, but not with butter and cream on it. She cannot have many peas or beans, because they are so nutritious. She can have a serving of lean meat and green vegetables. No rich gravies are allowed. All portions must be small, and no second helpings are allowed. Dessert should consist usually of fresh fruit, or a little cheese. If the patient's caloric intake is held below 1,200, she should lose. She must develop a new art of eating habits, and then stick to them for the rest of her days. It is silly to reduce just for a few weeks or months. Why go to such trouble if soon one is going to go back to the old weight?

I was just reading where Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education, and welfare, pledged an all-out effort to back the food and drug administration campaign to protect people from "fraudulent products and schemes being foisted on the public as weight reducers." He said, "There is no such article as a simple, safe and sane food, drug or device which will bring about loss of body weight without exercise or the will to cut down the food intake." Flemming notes that the American Medical Association authorities have estimated that people are now being fleeced out of a hundred million dollars a year as they buy stupid diets and mechanical devices. As Flemming says, the great number of devices which are now supposed to shake off weight testify to the great desire women have to slim down without behaving themselves at the table.

In a recent article, Dr. M. R. Caro, of Chicago, wrote that always an itching skin must be studied carefully by a skin specialist. Sometimes he will diagnose what is called contact dermatitis due to irritation by some substance, and to find it, good detective work is often needed. In many cases this has to be done by the patient himself. He may have to keep a written record of what he did each time before his skin itched. For instance, a highly allergic woman found, on keeping a record, that her terrible itching often came on the day when she threw clothes into the washing machine. On narrowing this down, she found that the offending substance was poison ivy emanation on the overalls of her boys—after they had gone climbing in the hills. The cure then was simple—to pick up the trousers only when wearing a heavy pair of gloves.

The irritant may be connected with the patient's occupation, or with one of his hobbies. A woman may get it in one of her cosmetics. In such cases, naturally, success comes only when the irritant substance is found and removed. There may be a ringworm; there may be an abnormally dry skin which needs to have oil rubbed into it after the bath. Itching can be due to some drug like a sleeping medicine that is being taken frequently. Sometimes an internist has to study the patient to make sure that he hasn't hidden diabetes or a beginning Hodgkin's disease.

SUDDEN RETURN of U.S. army secretary Wilbur Brucker from Far Eastern tour was interpreted today as result of criticism following his statement that the U.S. had pledged to defend Nationalist China's offshore islands against Reds. Washington, however, denied this and said he was recalled for a meeting.

Tory Quartet May Be Exempt From Subpoena

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker and three other top Conservatives have been slapped by subpoenas, but indications were that they packed only the power of a piece of paper blown by a random breeze. Newfoundland bailiff Hardy Barfitt showed up at the prime minister's East Block office shortly before a cabinet meeting Wednesday and served the subpoena calling on Mr. Diefenbaker to appear as a witness in a civil action in Newfoundland Supreme Court. The action involves election campaign funds.

Mr. Barfitt made a similar service on Allister Grosart, national director of the Progressive Conservative party.

Earlier, he had served papers on Hon. W. J. Browne, minister without portfolio from Newfoundland.

State Secretary Courtemanche today became the fourth to get a subpoena. Mr. Courtemanche was late receiving his because he was in Montreal Wednesday.

BROWNE UNDECIDED

Mr. Browne told reporters before entering a cabinet meeting that he is undecided about what he will do, but he said the subpoenas have no validity outside Newfoundland.

Justice Minister Fulton was called into Mr. Diefenbaker's office shortly after the subpoenas serving, apparently for consultation, but it appeared that the action by Mr. Barfitt lacked legal teeth.

Word from St. John's was that Mr. Diefenbaker could refuse a Newfoundland court subpoena as invalid outside the province, and this presumably would apply to Mr. Grosart as well, although a court order could be obtained naming a commission to go to Ottawa to take evidence.

In addition, authorities on Parliamentary privileges noted that the reference text, May's Parliamentary Practice, states that "members of both Houses are, by the law and custom of Parliament, exempted from attendance as witnesses during the session of Parliament."

SYNOPSIS—Cold Pacific air is again moving into the province as the storm which moved strongly against the coast Wednesday now weakens and moves inland. This system brought considerable rain to the coast during the night with the rain changing to wet snow at many points as the colder air became established.

With the system weakening rather little precipitation is expected in the interior. However, it will help to maintain cloudy skies in most areas today. With the eastward passage of the disturbance there will be some improvement in weather conditions. However, another but weaker system now entering the Gulf of Alaska from the west will likely cause a few more showers or snow flurries on the coast early Friday.

LESS INFLUENCE IN DRAFT CONSTITUTION

Labor's Role Cut in New Party

(From Times News Services)

OTTAWA — Action to cut down the influence and financial support of trade unions in the new CCF-Canadian Labor Congress political party, has been taken by those preparing a draft constitution.

Written by the "national committee for the new party" the draft constitution was made public Wednesday.

The constitution would curtail the dominance of trade union members by cutting back their vote at national party conventions.

A first-draft constitution suggested giving affiliated trade unions one vote for every 500 members. The revised draft issued Wednesday to be placed before national conventions of both groups later in 1960 reduces the trade union vote to one for every 1,000 members.

The new draft at the same time increases the strength of the individual constituency member of the new party by a proposal to give him one vote for every 50 members compared to the earlier figure of one vote for every 100 members.

The study suggests one objective should be expanded co-operative and public ownership where desirable in the public interest.

A second proposed target would be planned use of human and material resources to obtain an "ever-expanding economy dedicated to the service of human needs above private profit."

The paper also proposes a way around the possibility that members of affiliating organizations—trade union members or others—may want no part of the new party.

Union Members Won't Have to Join

It suggests that affiliation of groups be allowed on a national or regional basis, adding:

"Any member of an affiliated organization may at any time inform his organization that he does not wish per capita dues to be paid to the party on his behalf and the organization shall forthwith cease to do so."

CLC president Claude Jodoin has stated that the CLC, while sponsoring the new party, won't be directly tied to it because some CLC members—including civil service employees—either want to avoid any political connection or disapprove of the new party.

Proposed fees include five cents a month per capita from affiliated members, $2.50 annually from individual party members and $2 annually from members of affiliated groups.

The study lists nine objectives in all, including promotion of universal disarmament, plus suggestions on membership, fees and dues, national council, national executive, provincial parties and a national consultative council drawn from party, parliamentary, farm, labor and other sources.

The paper lists as another proposed objective "to unite all progressive people and organizations in Canada into federal and provincial parties financed and democratically controlled by individuals and affiliated members."

Individual membership would be open to anybody in Canada not a member of another party, while affiliated members could include trade unions, farm groups, co-operatives, fraternal, ethnic and cultural organizations accepting the new party's aims and constitution.

Nigeria Rejects African Union

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of this most populous state in Africa, Wednesday rejected overtures from Prime Minister Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana for a union of West African states.

"Nigeria will not surrender its sovereignty to any other country right after winning independence," Sir Abubakar said.

GHANA READY

Only last week, Nkrumah said Ghana was ready to surrender its sovereignty to a union of African states.

The Nigerian prime minister will lead Nigeria to independence Oct. 1.

Sir Abubakar, who presented Prime Minister Macmillan to a joint session of the newly-elected Nigerian Parliament Wednesday took a swipe at another member of the Commonwealth at a press conference. South Africa is a discredit to the Commonwealth because of its racial policies and if it doesn't change, it should give up the membership, he said. Macmillan assured Northern Rhodesia and Nyasaland that Britain will maintain its protection unless their people freely choose the independence in federation with white-dominated Southern Rhodesia.

Half-Million Hit By Asian 'Flu Bug

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A half-million Los Angeles residents have been stricken in an epidemic of what authorities believe is Asian influenza.

The disease which broke out on a large scale early this week was declared of epidemic proportions Wednesday by acting city health officer Ralph Sachs. He said it would hit its peak in about a week.

Dr. Malcolm Merrill, state health officer, said the disease was identified as Asian influenza in patients from San Diego and nearby counties.

The infection causes high temperatures, sore throats, chest and stomach pains—but so far has not been reported to be fatal. It usually runs its course in two to five days.

Plan Would Halt Trains at Street Level Crossings

(From Duncan Bureau)

Duncan city council will check the possibility of stopping trains at street-railroad crossings, instead of following the custom of having cars and trucks give way to the trains.

Discussion arose at a special council meeting Wednesday, called to discuss traffic problems, when city engineer R. E. Potter was instructed to prepare plans for a third railway crossing in the city's business section.

"There are more cars than trains, so let's stop the trains," said Mayor Jack Dobson. "It has got to come, so let's get started on it."

The suggested crossing would be a westward extension of Coronation Avenue to connect with Ingram Street.

Other features of a program designed to improve all phases of traffic in the city are:

1. Stricter control of parking regulations.

2. Limitation of truck operations.

3. Construction of a first class parking lot.

Both Ald. J. H. Saunders and J. J. Kerrone agreed that parking regulations on city streets are not being enforced, and that traffic inspection must be "speeded up." Ald. Kerrone suggested a motorcycle patrol within the city.

Council will arrange a meeting in the near future with trucking firms to suggest establishment of a depot, with smaller vehicles making deliveries within the city.

"We don't want the larger trucks," Ald. Saunders said. "It is not the weight which is objectionable, but the length."

Council approved a plan to drain, level and prepare the old exhibition grounds, leased from Cowichan Indian Band, as a city-operated parking area.

"Victoria and Nanaimo are struggling with parking problems," Mayor Dobson said. "Let's have Duncan be the first city on the island to establish a model parking lot."

Chamber Wants Indian Lands For Industries

(From Duncan Bureau)

Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce will seek a meeting with the federal Indian agent to discuss what Indian lands, if any, can be made available for commercial and industrial development.

The new industries committee of the chamber, headed by J. S. Lawrence, is working on a program to bring new industry and commercial business establishments to the Duncan area. Indian lands constitute the only property adjacent to the city suitable for such development.

The chamber will urge the federal fisheries department to carry out its next program of spawning research on the Cowichan River. The department is conducting a similar program on the Soaness River at present and members believe the Cowichan River is a far more important spawning ground.

A letter will be sent to the highways department complaining of the condition of the government portion of the Shawinigan Lake-Port Renfrew Road, described as in poor shape.

The department thanked the chamber for suggesting a shorter route for the Mill Bay-Brentwood ferry, but advised that the matter already is under consideration.

DUNCAN—Tender of $3,400 by A. Baranuk for the purchase of land and a building at 320 Spruce Place, Centennial Heights subdivision, was accepted by city council this week, subject to approval of the board of works.

Mr. Baranuk also submitted plans for remodelling the unfinished building up to NHA specifications to conform with other dwellings in the modern new subdivision.

NANAIMO—Brannen Lake Industrial School Wednesday reported more than 180 boys were detained in the school, built to accommodate 135. Average number of inmates is 160. The current number is a record high.

LADYSMITH—New officers of Ladysmith AOTS Club are Ode Gust, president; Art Hardwick, first vice-president; Jim Mason, secretary; Andy Easton, treasurer; Dave Stringer, district council representative.

Recently initiated into the club were Art Aird and George Foucher.

Press, TV, Radio Probe Requested

OTTAWA (CP)—The CCF is seeking parliamentary committee study of the extent to which the mass media of communication—newspapers and radio and television stations—are becoming concentrated in the hands of fewer corporations.

CCF Leader Hazen Argue said Wednesday night in a statement he has placed on the Commons' order paper a motion calling for the study because he feels there is a serious danger to freedom of the press from concentration of ownership in that field.

30 Experts To Teach Fire Control

More than 30 experts of government and industry will act as the faculty at the fifth annual coast forest fire control course to be given at the B.C. Building on the PNE grounds in Vancouver.

Sponsored by the Canadian Forestry Association, on behalf of the Forest Fire Protection Committee, it is designed to inform industry of the latest practical developments in forest fire prevention and suppression.

Among exhibits with the two-man kit designed by the B.C. Forest Service for the control of lightning strikes, light and easy-to-carry, it includes a disposable paper sleeping bag, hand tools and sharpening stones, food for four days, electric lights and batteries, first aid kit, compass, full mess kit and pack board.

Heavier equipment, which also can be handled by two men, is displayed at the left of the accompanying picture. There are a two-man heavy duty pump, one-man portable power pump, intake and conventional hose, radio, pump repair tools and parts, and additional firefighting tools.

DUNCAN—A request for tax exemption on the Duncan Guide and Scout Hall at Cairnmore and Cavell Streets was refused Wednesday by the city council.

Ald. J. H. Saunders said that old-time dancing is held in the hall every Saturday night. "If each dancer put in 25 cents a session they'd have the tax money in no time," Ald. Saunders said.

The annual tax bill is $131, and the council grant is $25.

'Bleak Prospect' Says Economist

TORONTO (CP) — A continental approach to North American uranium supplies was suggested at the conference on uranium and atomic energy which ended here Wednesday.

The suggestion came from an American economist, Philip Mullenbach, of Chicago, formerly on the staff of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

He made it only after stating that uranium producers in Canada and in other countries outside the U.S. face a "bleak prospect" for the 1960s, and he emphasized that a continental approach would be possible only if Canadian costs were competitive.

"One valid reason for the U.S. policy of cutting procurement back to domestic sources," Mr. Mullenbach said, "is the fact that average production costs are lower in the U.S. than elsewhere."

"Possibly," he added, "certain Canadian operations are less costly than marginal ones in the U.S. If this be true, then a basis for negotiated modification of the present AEC policy may exist."

Canada's system of controls on trading in natural uranium are out-dated, A. F. Lowell, head of the marketing department of Rio Tinto Mining Company of Canada, said earlier.

The controls to which Mr. Lowell objects include a provision that only token amounts of uranium may be exported to any country which has not concluded with Canada a bilateral agreement on the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Countries which sign bilateral agreements may be asked to receive Canadian inspectors to ascertain that the uranium is not being used for military purposes.

PRODUCE AT HOME

Mr. Lowell said a number of countries object to concluding such agreements and tend to enter uranium production themselves — even at higher costs.

He added that natural uranium is not a particularly scarce material and any country can obtain it without much difficulty. Such a country, if it has natural uranium reactors, can breed plutonium and, over a period of time, accumulate enough to use in nuclear warheads.

This situation, Mr. Lowell stated, makes the controls pointless. But he added that a distinction should be drawn between natural and enriched uranium.

"Insofar as the United States still has a virtual monopoly of enriched uranium production facilities, and as highly enriched uranium is direct bomb material, there is 'probably still some point in their continuing to restrict exports of this material under some bilateral agreement system."

OVER-ALL REVIEW

Winnett Boyd, Montreal consulting engineer, suggested that a royal commission be established to review all aspects of Canada's nuclear and uranium marketing policies.

"Because of the crisis now facing our uranium mining communities and companies, it is believed that the first action of the royal commission should be to have some independent organization make a thorough study on its behalf of the economic feasibility of a Canadian or Anglo-Canadian enrichment facility as a means of increasing the export sales of Canadian uranium and of satisfying the future demands of the Canadian and British navies and power companies for enriched uranium fuel."

Larry Sefton, director of District Six, United Steelworkers of America, said recent developments make necessary a thorough re-evaluation by government, management and labor of the uranium mining industry.

60,000-Ton Coal Order From Japan

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — A 60,000-ton order from Japan for Western Canada's largest underground coal mine at Michel, B.C., has been confirmed by T. G. Ewart, president of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company.

Mr. Ewart said in an interview the order was placed about 10 days ago, but it was contingent on the availability of shipping space. The order has to be completed by March 31.

The new order is a direct follow-up to a 55,000-ton coking coal order Japan placed with the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company last May. At that time a 45,000-ton order was also placed with Coleman Collieries Ltd., at Coleman and West Canadian Collieries Ltd., at Blairmore.

NATURAL GAS RESERVES UP

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta oil and gas conservation board says the established reserves of natural gas within the province stand at an estimated 24.0 trillion cubic feet.

The board, in an official report, says the figure represents an increase of 2.1 trillion cubic feet since the last estimate, dated Dec. 31, 1958.

Zinc, Lead Tariffs Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — An industry group urged that if higher duties executive of a zinc mining and or flexible quotas are imposed smelting concern told the tariff on pig lead imports as a means of aiding the domestic mining industry, the same protection would provide the best solution to the industry's ills.

"So far as the mining industry is concerned, such a duty must be quick in its effect and effective in accomplishing its purpose under all but the most unusual conditions," said Richard A. Young, vice-president of the American Zinc, Lead & Smelting Company, St. Louis.

Earlier, representatives of the lead manufacturing industry said that if higher duties executive of a zinc mining and or flexible quotas are imposed smelting concern told the tariff on pig lead imports as a means of aiding the domestic mining industry, the same protection would provide the best solution to the industry's ills.

OFFER TERMED UNREALISTIC

'Phony Amateur Rule' Keeps Top Players Out

WHAT'S A LITTLE CUT TO BIG MAN LIKE MICK?

NEW YORK (AP)—Mickey Mantle, star outfielder for New York Yankees who had an off year in 1959, expects to be cut from his $70,000 salary last season.

"You've got to expect to get cut when you've had a year like I did," he said.

Taking a cut will be a new experience for Mantle.

"It never happened before," he said. "I don't know what it will be like."

Mantle hit .285 in 1959 compared to .304 in 1958. His runs batted in slumped to 75 from 97 and his number of home runs to 31 from 42.

Rugby Crusaders Will Test Whites

Oak Bay Whites, who got away to a flying start last weekend in the Victoria Rugby Union's new two-division campaign, get an acid test Saturday.

Whites, who thumped Oak Bay Reds 28-0 in a first-division battle, clash head on with James Bay Crusaders, 60 vic-

Great Batting By Substitute

MADRAS, India (Reuters)—Les Favell, who was included in the team at the last moment when opening batsman Gavin Stevens became ill, scored 100 not out for Australia in the fourth cricket test match against India which began here Wednesday.

Australia had scored 183 for three wickets at the close of play.

Favell batted throughout the day after Richie Benaud had won the toss for the first time in the series, to give Australia first use of the turf pitch.

Colin McDonald and Favell put on 58 for the first wicket before McDonald was bowled by Jasu Patel, the off-spinner, who took 14 wickets in the second test but missed the third through illness.

Neil Harvey fell to Ramakant Resai after scoring only 11 but Norman O'Neill and Favell added 70 for the third wicket. Desai then bowled O'Neill for 40.

Australia won the first test, India the second and the third was drawn.

Elmer Lends a Hand As Tourists Tan Scots

EDINBURGH (CP)—The touring Canadian curlers ended their short visit to Edinburgh Wednesday night with a resounding 96-41 win over a Peebles and East Lothian province team at the Haymarket ice rink.

Every Canadian rink, including one skipped by Victoria's Elmer Hoffman, won its match. The most convincing victory was that posted by Montreal skip Hal Clarke whose rink beat W. M. Sime's crew, 22-4.

Hoffman's rink defeated P. Smith, 15-9.

The tourists left later for Ayr where they play the second of seven test matches next Monday. Earlier Wednesday, the Canadians were beaten, 83-47, by a team representing Biggar and Clydesdale.

Impressive Triumphs In Doubles

Impressive mixed doubles wins were scored Wednesday by Ross Young and Joan Rothie in the annual city badminton championship at Victoria Lawn Tennis and Badminton Club.

The pair beat Russ Atkinson and J. Mowat 15-13 and 15-9 and followed the win up with a 15-5, 13-15, 15-13 victory over Bernice Passish and Jack Lesquesne.

Open and handicap play continues today and most events will reach the semifinals by Saturday.

Today's draw:

7:30 p.m.—McCormick and McCormick vs. Walton and Norbury; N. Pat- Douglas; M. Hunt and B. Hunt vs. Mas- sey and Wells; Currie and Greer vs. Lohm and Macdonald; Anderson and Bray vs. Clarke and Crampson; 8:15 p.m.—Humber and Hedley vs. Sluzgett vs. Chapman and Headley; Currie and Greer vs. Bassett and Pol- lard; Godfrey and Williams vs. Cox and Massey; Alder and McDowell; 9 p.m.—Powell and Norbury vs. Loe- and Greer; Wells and Lesquesne vs. King and Hurd; Cooley and Headley vs. winner M. Hunt and B. Hunt vs. Massey and Wells; Rothie and Salmon vs. Cramp- son and McCormick; MacMurchie and B. MacMurchie vs. M. Knott and R. Knott; 9:45 p.m.—Hunt and Hedley vs. Han- thorne and Dawson; Hibberd and Hurd vs. Wells and MacKenzie; Wood- land and Massey vs. Cooley and King; Knott and Lane vs. Clarke and Kara- dimas; Ford and Oakes vs. R. Wells and J. Wells; Sluzgett and Wilson vs. win- ners of Chapman and Headley vs. Knott and Sluzgett.

Dupas to Hunt 'Bigger Game'

MOBILE, Ala. (UPI)—Ralph Dupas is looking for "bigger game" among the welterweights while Kenny Lane is "goin' back to the little fellas" among the light-weights.

This sums up the future plans of the two fighters after Dupas scored a unanimous decision over Lane in Wednes- day's televised 10-round bout at the Fort Whiting Arena.

"I want Luis Roldriguez next," said Dupas, referring to the top-ranking welterweight contender from Cuba. "And then champion Don Jordan."

"I just can't go against these boys," conceded Lane. "I'm too slow at this weight to be at my best and I can't spot good welterweights 10 pou ds. So I'll just have to start chasin' lightweight champ Joe Brown."

Dupas, of New Orleans, sliced up Lane like 50-cent hamburger in the first three rounds and then beat off the late flurries of the Muskegon, Mich., battler, who sought to get inside and hammer away at his opponent's stomach.

Judge L. C. Lyman had Dupas ahead, 47-43, judge Charles F. Oberkirk scored it 47-45, and referee Tommy Baker had it 48-47.

"Busy... busy... busy... that's the only way to go against a southpaw," said Du- pas, explaining his windmill strategy throughout the fight. "You gotta get out there and start swinging. I kept thinking that if I lost this one, I'd be washed up as a real contender for the welterweight title."

McColl Deserves That Tag

Pin that "favorite" label on Bill McColl.

The veteran city golfer, win- ner of the fall monthly medal series, will be playing his home course when the spring series opens at Royal Colwood this Sunday.

About 30 of the city's leading shotmakers are entered. A lim- ited number of post entries will be accepted.

Sunday's draw follows: 10:15—V. Painter, G. Bizeby, G. Pei- low, J. Merriman, W. McColl, K. Lawson, R. MacLeod; 10:30—R. Cuth, W. McColl, K. Lawson, R. MacLeod; 10:45—Dr. R. Ross, F. Scroggs, R. Chap- pell, R. Morrison; 11:00—H. Glenn, C. Haggie, A. MacLeod, H. Jacobson; 11:15—G. Andrews, L. Kerr, E. Beache- min, J. Evans; 11:30—M. Orr, S. Finley, E. Dye, M. Carlow; 11:45—J. Rainer, J. Carlow, F. Painter, H. McWhirter; 12:00—V. Wheatley, G. Jones, H. Flet- cher, J. Briggs; 12:15—J. Storrie, R. Hoadley, M. Bar- low, J. Rendie; 12:30—G. Hay, O. Jull.

YATES AT QUADRA

FIRE as coach of Omaha Knights Wednesday was former National Hockey League star Metro Prystai. He was replaced by Mud Bruneteau. With Edmonton Flyers last season, Prystai's first role as coach ended with Knights mired in last place in International League with 8-28, won-lost record.

Olympic Village Eating Colorful and Nutritious

SQUAW VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—Emphasis on the food at the Winter Olympics Feb. 18-28 will be on high protein menus—but the service will be dramatic and an athlete may get almost any dish he requests.

Robert Minerich, director of the Olympic Village, plans to make the meals colorful as well as nutritious.

The setting is a dining room seating 900. It has a huge, grey stone fireplace... high, beamed ceiling... spectacular views of the rugged Sierra through picture windows on two sides.

VICTORY CAKES
Delmonico, the chief baker, will prepare a victory cake for the winner of each event. It will be served with a flourish at each night's dinner.

This will be the first Olympics where all athletes have dined under one roof. Minerich and his chief aide, Irving Williams, hope to make it memorable.

Olympic Village will house 1,200 to 1,500 athletes, coaches and other team members. Williams believes the 900-seat dining room will be ample since all won't be able to eat at the same time.

Menus will be printed in at least five languages. Waiters and cooks will be bi or multilingual.

Lunch and dinner will feature meat, cheese, eggs, and unlimited quantities of milk, fresh fruit and juices, milk, honey, raisins and chocolate bars.

WINES SERVED
Not on the menu—but available and certainly expected to be requested—are beer, wine and even aquavit.

The food basically will be American, but cooked in so many ways that Williams and Rasmussen expect it to please everyone.

Athletes will have a choice of three hot entrees at each lunch and four for dinner. Beef, pork or lamb, fowl and fish will be served at all meals except breakfast.

Williams has ordered 6,000 half-pint cartons of milk to be delivered every day. There will be black bread in quantity for European athletes who expect it at every meal.

Steaks will be served twice a week. Williams' order for beef includes 6,600 pounds of prime ribs, 3,200 pounds of top sirloin and 4,500 pounds of ground beef.

The menus are designed to meet the training needs for every country. Rasmussen has informed all countries he is prepared to meet their requests. None has suggested it would like to send its own cook.

World Hunt Ends For 'Baby Face'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Harold (Baby Face) Goodwin, object of an international man-hunt since his bizarre "walk-out" escape from Pretoria Central Prison in Johannesburg, South Africa, was held today by federal authorities.

He was captured in downtown Los Angeles by agents of the Immigration and Naturalization Service on a tip from Vancouver, B.C., police.

Goodwin, 35, who is also known as Robin John Sheppard, Harold John Grimley-Goodwin and Kenneth Jack Taylor, was serving a nine-year sentence at the prison when he walked out.

He claims he was born in South Africa and represents himself to be a citizen of that country, Canada and a British subject. He was convicted in South Africa for fraud in 1945, 1953, 1956, and 1959.

"After his last arrest and the nine-year sentence, he escaped by presenting a forged release order showing bond had been posted for an appeal.

Search for Goodwin was being conducted by the South African police, Scotland Yard and Interpol, the international police organization, England, Canada, Israel and France, among other countries.

His record in the United States includes a 1944 conviction in New York for passport fraud and deportation from the United States to South Africa in 1945.

U.S. attorney Laughlin E. Waters was being asked to institute prosecution based upon his unlawful entry into the United States following his deportation.

Goodwin will ultimately be turned over to law enforcement officers having a claim on him.

Ike Denies U.S. Planned Action

WASHINGTON (Reuters)—President Eisenhower, answering a question at his press conference Wednesday about Sir Anthony Eden's memoirs, said there never was any United States plan to intervene in the war in Indochina.

The president added that Sir Anthony was not an irresponsible person and was writing his story as he believed it to be.

The president was asked whether he would authorize the state department to give the press the United States version of what took place.

Eisenhower replied that he would have to talk with others about this suggestion.

Sir Anthony's memoirs were critical of the late John Foster Dulles and quoted a memorandum in which the former British prime minister told his cabinet that the Americans had shown no clear conception of the military operations which he said they had proposed in the Indochina war.

SEND PLANES

Eden said in his first instalment of his memoirs that Dulles planned to intervene with planes in the Indochina war six years ago and that Britain's refusal to go along prevented the intervention and probably stopped a third world war.

Famed Negro Pastor, 'Daddy' Grace, Dies

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Charles Manuel Grace, founder of a Negro church called "The house of prayer for all people," died in hospital Tuesday. He was 78.

Grace founded the church in Charlotte, N.C., in 1926, baptizing Negroes in a mudhole. He later claimed 3,000,000 followers in 67 cities.

Their loyalty was such that they bought food, toothpaste and other products bearing his name.

Known as Daddy Grace, he was a flashy dresser. He rode in a custom Cadillac and had houses and property in many major cities.

Most of his followers were Negroes, and a visit by Daddy Grace to any city where there is a "house of prayer for all people" was a tremendous event.

His houses of worship, like his long, manicured fingernails, were painted red, white and blue. His hands were jeweled, he wore a moustache and his hair flowed down to his shoulders.

Daddy Grace's followers showered him with dollar bills whenever he came to town, fanned him with palm leaves, covered his path with roses.

"I'm all people's man," he would explain it. "I'm the boy friend of the world!"

CITY NEWS BRIEFS

HALIFAX (CP)—Thirty Canadian warships and 5,000 men will take part in winter exercises of the navy's Atlantic Command between here and the West Indies. The exercises, from mid-January to the end of March, will be under the command of commodore James Plomer of Halifax and Winnipeg.

WEST GERMAN PARLEY ON ANTI-SEMITIC WAVE

BONN (Reuters)—Premiers of 10 West German states gathered here today for a closed-door discussion of the current wave of anti-semitic and neo-Nazi incidents.

West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt, who planned to attend the meeting at the Bundesrat (upper house), said the premiers would consider common measures against extreme right-wing groups in the states.

Political Dictation Move Denied

NANAIMO (CP)—Civil servants are free to support the party of their choice and no labor body can force the B.C. Government Employees Association to do anything as a body contrary to its constitution, association general secretary E. P. O'Connor told an audience of government workers Tuesday night.

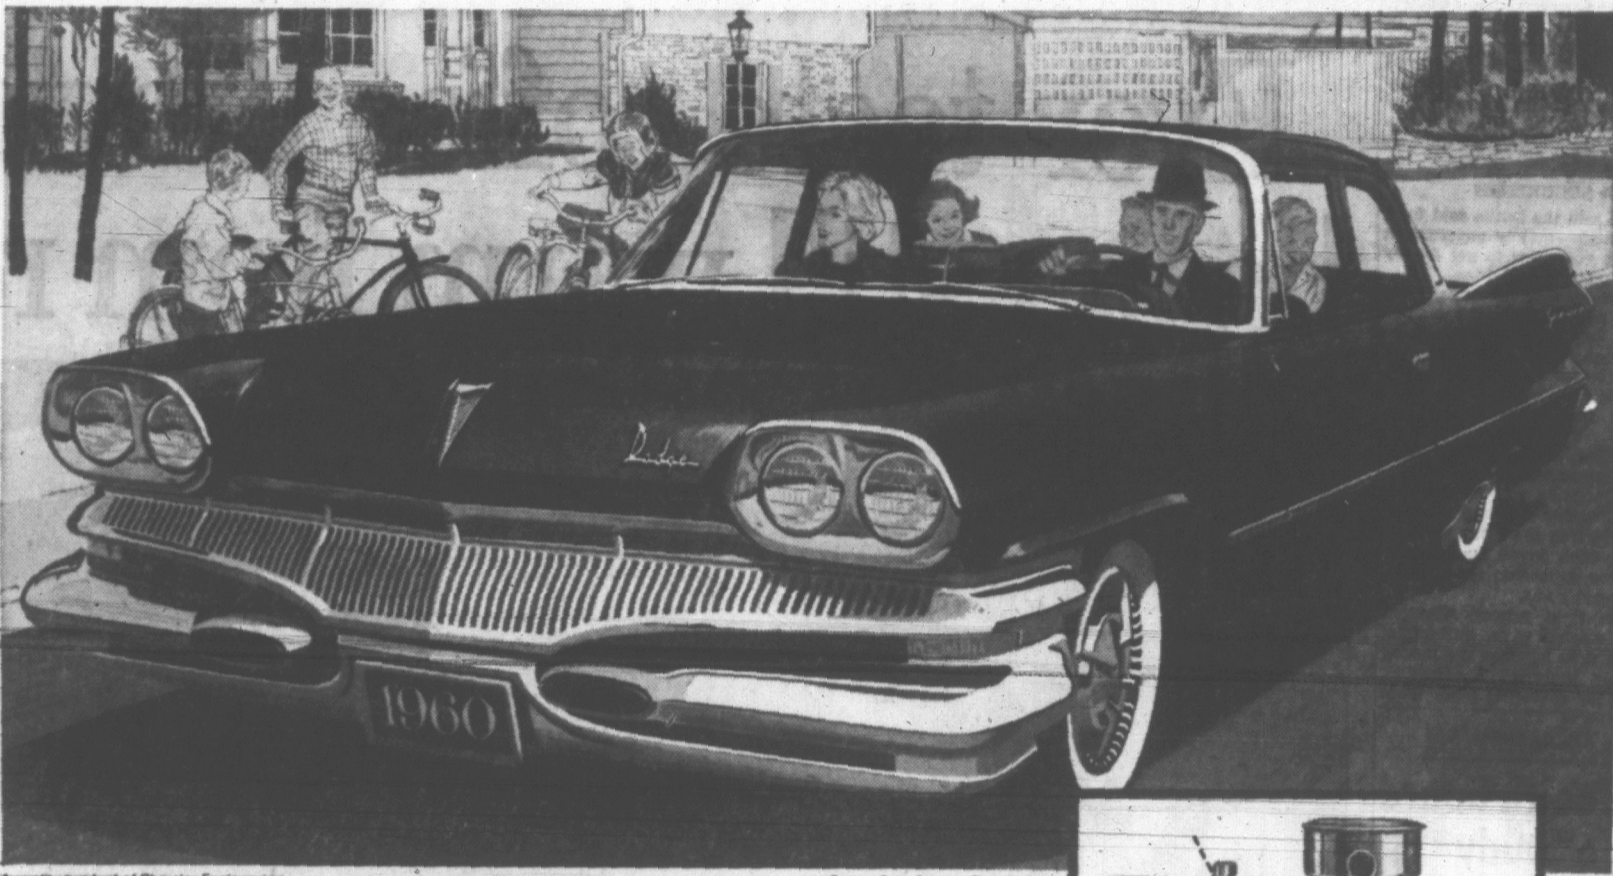

"Neither the CLC, the B.C. Federation of Labor nor the Local Labor Council has authority to dictate policy to any of their affiliates," Mr. O'Connor said.

"The CLC can make no decision that is binding on any union. It can only recommend."

"Under existing circumstances it is an insult to suggest that any organization, including our own, could tell us as individuals what political party to support," he said.

"Our constitution says our union may not take part in partisan political activity."

Dodge Dart Seneca Club Sedan

More "go" on less gas! That's the story on Dodge Dart's super economy six with the Economy Slant!

Now you don't have to sacrifice power to get gas economy. Dodge engineers have developed a super economy six cylinder engine that outclasses any other six in the industry. It's an engine that gives you an extra hour's mileage bonus on every tankful of gas. This is the economy slant that makes Dodge Dart the best buy in the low price field for 1960. New inclined power-line design, overhead valves, high efficiency compression ratio make this the liveliest, thirstiest six in any full-size car on the road. Unique inclined block design allows semi-ram tuning of fuel induction system. Special full-flow intake manifold provides even distribution of fuel to all cylinders. Special high-efficiency cam puts the torque where it belongs—right down in the normal driving ranges. This is the first new "Six" in the low price field since 1955. There's nothing like it on the road. Drive a Dodge Dart "Six" ... and see for yourself. There are mighty V-8's in the Dodge Dart line too! Visit your local Dodge-De Soto dealer's today ... look at Dodge Dart's new engine and you'll see the difference. Drive a Dodge Dart and you'll feel the difference.

Silence with strength! That's the story on "UNIBODY" ... another Dodge Dart First!

Look what else you're getting for your money with the dashing new Dodge Dart ... revolutionary, one-piece "Unibody" construction that combines body-and-frame in a single fortress of steel ... and does away with squeaks, rattles, and rust. Drive a Dodge Dart today ... and discover what the solid silence of "Unibody" construction can mean to you!

Money Policy Backed by Muir

MONTREAL (CP)—Monetary authorities did "precisely the right thing" in October, 1958, when they held the money supply constant in the face of an increasing demand for loans, James Muir, president of the Royal Bank of Canada, said today.

Addressing the bank's annual meeting Mr. Muir said: "Had they not set about neutralizing the terrific head of monetary steam generated by the previous increase in the money supply, we should have seen an uncontrolled blast of inflation which might well have been disastrous."

The money supply increased to $13,200,000,000 in October, 1958, from $11,900,000,000 in May of the same year.

Mr. Muir said the chartered banks supported the government's anti-inflationary policy during the period when the money supply was not allowed to increase.

SOLD SECURITIES

He said the banks sold their securities—mainly government bonds—in order to get money to lend.

"There was no creation of new money—only the channelling of savings into loans through the mobilization of the banks' existing money supply."

By the banks' action, he said:

1. The money supply was held constant;
2. Inflation was throttled;
3. Further recovery took up the slack in the monetary system which paved the way for further expansion on a sound financial basis.

The tight money situation that existed when authorities refused to increase the money supply indicated the lending rate for chartered bank loans should be allowed to be affected by the money market, he said.

The bank act fixes the maximum rate for chartered bank loans at 6 per cent.

"Monetary authorities control would run much smoother if the chartered banks were enabled always to implement Bank of Canada policy by allowing their lending rates to reflect changes in market rates."

NEW PRESIDENT MUST SHOW 'FIGHTING MOOD'

SEN. KENNEDY

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) said today the next president must bring a "fighting mood" to the White House and not just issue "ringing manifestos . . . from rear of the battle."

Without saying so specifically, the announced candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination left little doubt that he felt he was the man for the job.

Kennedy told the National Press Club in a prepared speech that the winner of this year's presidential election "must be prepared to exercise the fullest powers of his office—all that are specified and some that are not."

GOVERNOR of the Bank of France, Wilfrid Baumgartner, will succeed Antoine Pinay as finance minister of France.

Full Probe of Forest Tax Suggested by Williston

VANCOUVER (CP)—Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston Wednesday suggested a full investigation of the tax load on British Columbia's forest industry.

He made the proposal in a speech prepared for the B.C. Truck Loggers' Association convention but not delivered when he decided to answer charges made earlier by lumberman Gordon Gibson.

He admitted in the speech that the burden of federal and provincial taxes is heavy, but warned lumbermen it is up to them to study industrial efficiency and cost-of-production as well as the problems of marketing techniques and product development.

Their ability in meeting these problems should also come under investigation in the inquiry, he added.

"The key to this whole situation is whether the forest industry pays a disproportionate share of the total tax revenue collected in this province by both federal and provincial agencies," he said.

Mr. Williston said he would be prepared to see an examination along these lines:

1. To determine the effect of the cumulative national-provincial forest tax load on the ability of the industry to compete in world markets.

2. To determine the effect of the cumulative tax load on investment required for proper economic development and maintenance of first-class facilities.

3. To consider what steps the industry itself is taking and prepared to take to cut production costs.

Mr. Williston did not discuss the form of the proposed inquiry.

NEW INSTANT MAXWELL HOUSE

Actually percolated from coffee beans so fresh they're still warm from the roaster. (No wonder it's now the freshest-tasting coffee you can buy!)

You just can't get coffee that tastes fresher than the New Instant Maxwell House. It's percolated for you—from freshly roasted, freshly ground coffee beans—right in Maxwell House's own fragrant coffee kitchens. (What a place to work!) Now every famous flavor bud of the New Instant Maxwell House is fresher than ever. Probably that's the reason more families drink it than any coffee that comes in cans, bags—or other jars!

Health Board To Study Safety Belts

Problems of convincing motorists to use safety belts in their cars will be studied at a future meeting of the Victoria-Esquamalt Health Board.

Medical health officer Dr. Elizabeth Mahaffy told the board Tuesday that it has been estimated after a study that 550 lives out of the 30,000 lost annually in car accidents on the continent could be saved by seat belts.

Ald. Elmer McEwen asked why the subject should be studied by a health board.

"Preventing loss of human life is our job," chairman R. H. Reeve replied.

Board agreed to advertise for a full-time public health educator to replace Keith MacDonald, who has been doing the work on a part-time basis for four years and will enter a year's internship as a doctor this year.

Ald. McEwen, noting the health education provided school children, questioned the need for the position.

He was told that adults also need health education. The departmental official helps translate the rapid advances of medical science for laymen and relieves the MHO of many routine administrative duties.

The federal government pays 75 per cent of the salary.

The board endorsed in principle the Salvation Army decision to build a $771,000 boarding home for senior citizens and the St. Joseph's Hospital decision to launch a campaign for building funds.

West Berlin Bans Two Youth Groups

BERLIN (CP)—The West Berlin city government Tuesday banned two neo-Nazi youth organizations.

A spokesman said the two youth groups—the League of National Students and National Youth of Germany—were ordered dissolved in West Berlin.

Both organizations had members arrested when police broke up a Nazi-style torchlight ceremony early this month. Seventeen youths arrested had sung Nazi songs and displayed the swastika.

Only 22 hours after he was caught—red-handed—smearing swastikas onto walls, a 44-year-old painter was sentenced by a court in Lüneburg, to seven months' imprisonment.

The court refused to suspend the sentence for Max Schlahta.

"I must have been crazy," said Schlahta.

West Berlin police arrested two young men suspected of plastering on walls and fences distorted pictures of Chancellor Konrad Adenauer with Nazi slogans.

One youth said he acted on orders of the East German Communist youth organization.

DRASTIC REVISION URGED

Divided Control Of CD Attacked

OTTAWA (CP)—Maj. Gen. Matthew Penhale says Canada's civil defence program lacks positive leadership from the federal government and "drastic revision" is needed.

Gen. Penhale, a veteran of the First and Second World Wars and former head of Winnipeg's Civil Defence board, is commandant of the Canadian Civil Defence College at Arnprior, Ont.

He outlines what he described as the ills of civil defence and prescribed possible remedies in an article published in the current issue of the RCAF staff college magazine.

Under a program initiated last September, civil defence "has become the concern of no less than four separate federal departments or agencies," Gen. Penhale states.

The army, the national health and welfare department, the RCMP and the prime minister who is federal co-ordinator through the Emergency Measures Organization.

This divided control "offends against principles of good organization" and "we can see many occasions for confusion, overlapping and delay" the general says.

He suggests that an official with the status of deputy minister fill the Emergency Measures Organization top post with control over all civil defence.

As another possible solution he proposes that "over-all control be placed under the army's director-general of survival operations with a civilian section attached to his staff in an advisory capacity."

The tendency has been to hold back information regarding the damage that could be inflicted by a nuclear attack, Gen. Penhale says.

"Surely it is better to tell the people everything than to withhold information they must have to ensure survival."

GROUND TRIALS ANY DAY

2,000 mph Airliner Readied by Britain

LONDON (CP)—A stainless steel jet aircraft, capable of 2,000 miles an hour, may be flying for Britain within a couple of months.

Workmen at Bristol Aircraft Limited are believed to be putting the finishing touches on the research aircraft, fore-runner of a supersonic passenger airliner. Ground trials are expected to begin any day.

The aircraft, known as the Bristol 188, originally was scheduled to fly in 1958, but after construction began some radical changes were implemented, pushing back the target date. The $5,000,000 originally set aside for the project also has been exceeded.

The money was put up by the ministries of defence and aviation.

Spokesmen at Bristol say the project is secret and no details can be disclosed, but sources close to the aircraft describe it as a flying laboratory around which a $100,000,000 supersonic airliner will be designed.

The Society of British Aircraft Constructors, which keeps a close eye on all developments, says in its weekly news letter that the 188 will be powered by two de Havilland gyron jets, built of steel, titanium and nickel-alloy. All offer high resistance against heat.

The 188 is the first British aircraft designed to cruise at more than twice the speed of sound. It's also the first British aircraft to use steel instead of aluminum.

Cambrian Salvor... fuel transfer only hope for freighter.

FREIGHTER'S PLIGHT DESPERATE

City Tug Fights to Save Ship Sinking in Pacific

The Island Tug and Barge Ltd. Yokohama-based tugboat Cambrian Salvor is making a last-ditch stand today to save Panamanian freighter Ss. Gambler, in a sinking condition about 800 miles east of Japan.

Condition of the ship has greatly worsened overnight. Her foredeck is now under two feet of water, and she is taking water in her mid-tanks. Only hope is to get fuel aboard so the freighter's own pumps can hold back the in-flooding water.

The Gambler's master told Capt. James Van Komodo of the Cambrian Salvor he would stay aboard until the last instant.

AID BEING RUSHED

Rushing to the aid of Cambrian Salvor in her fight to save the Gambler is the Salvor's sister ship, the Victoria-based Sudbury II. She is expected to reach the scene Friday.

Salvor has managed to transfer some fuel oil to the freighter, and has been authorized to empty her tanks if necessary to get the freighter's pumps working.

Capt. Van Komodo wires lessed Norman Turner, Island Tug Marine superintendent who is supervising the operation from Yokohama, today that "Gambler will be lost tomorrow if we do not supply necessary oil. Weather is worsening."

Gale-force winds have been hampering the rescue operation since it started Monday.

FUEL GONE

The Gambler was bound for Japan with a cargo of 6,700 tons of scrap iron. She suffered two mechanical breakdowns in the Pacific, then ran out of fuel.

First water taken in the ship was in No. 1 hold—the hold nearest the bow of the ship. Then water entered No. 2 hold, finally the mid-tanks.

Three small emergency pumps put aboard by Cambrian Salvor failed to keep the water in check.

Name of the master of Gambler is not known. It is believed there are between 30 and 40 crew members aboard. They have been without heat or light for nearly a week. Emergency food supplies have been passed to them by the Salvor.

'VACANCY' SIGN FLASHED AT CITY JAIL

For the first time in about five years the city jail had only one prisoner Wednesday.

This morning there were only five additional inmates, all brought in by Saanich police.

The situation was unusual, particularly for this time of year when the daily average prisoner count is 20-25.

Last February there were as many as 40 in the lockup over a 24-hour period, with a daily average of 25-30.

500 Homes Phoneless In Big Blow

Winds that reached 67 miles per hour in gusts Wednesday night disrupted telephone service in about 500 Greater Victoria homes, a B.C. Telephone Co. official said today.

Elsewhere the wind, which picked up speed in mid-afternoon and averaged 40 miles per hour until midnight, managed only to break a few branches, blow down power wires at nine homes, and cause four chimney fires—two in the city and two in Oak Bay.

SALT ACTION

Telephone trouble is caused by action of salt air, which gradually weakens the wire, and vibration in high winds which finally cause it to break.

"After every really high wind we have a number of calls about loss of service, and all for this reason," the official said. "But we had extra help on the job, and everyone had service again by today."

Waterfront damage was practically non-existent. Because of the Turkey Head breakwater now creeping toward Mary Tod Island, Oak Bay Boat House floats came through, the storm without damage.

"This is the first time we have left the main floats out for the winter," said Mrs. Sarah Faith, manager at the boat house. "We took a chance on the breakwater giving enough protection, and it has been fine."

SNOW POSSIBLE

Weatherman William Mackie predicted cloudy skies with clear periods for tonight and Friday, and temperatures ranging between a chilly 26 degrees in the coldest areas tonight and 40 degrees Friday.

There is the possibility of showers, and conditions might be right for them to turn into wet snow occasionally, he said. In sharp contrast to Wednesday, wind tonight will be southerly at about 20 miles per hour, he said.

Another weather disturbance heading this way from mid-Pacific is expected to give more blustery weather late Friday or early Saturday.

"VICKY" HINCH

... have you seen her?

Help of Public Asked to Locate Missing Girl

Saanich police today asked public co-operation to find the whereabouts of 15-year-old Victoria Wray "Vicky" Hinch, missing from her home at 3965 Telegraph Bay Road since Tuesday morning.

The Landsdowne Junior High pupil is described as five feet four inches tall, short dark brown curly hair, blue eyes, a small scar on the left forehead and a mole at the hair parting. When last seen she was wearing a long black and white checked coat, navy blue flat-heel shoes, a blue tartan skirt and white blouse.

An one having information about the girl is asked to contact the Saanich police at GR 9-1616.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Shocks from the earthquake which killed 65 persons in Peru, Bolivia, and Chile Wednesday were recorded on the seismograph at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, according to W. G. Milne, seismologist.

Recordings proved the quake to be as strong as that which rocked Montana and Wyoming last summer, Mr. Milne said.

Victoria architect John di Castri will address the monthly meeting of the Vancouver Island section, Canadian Institute of Forestry, in the Tzouhalem Hotel, Duncan, Friday.

His subject will be "Future Trends in Architecture."

Mr. di Castri is well-known for his creative uses of native B.C. woods in home construction, and is one of the national winners in the Trend Home competition sponsored by the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan will present the government point of view on the Wenner-Gren developments in northern B.C. at a Victoria Labor Council panel discussion Saturday.

Opposition Leader Strachan and Pat O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor will attack the scheme. The panel starts at 9:30 a.m. in the Labor Hall.

Sentence was suspended when Barbara Margaret Kilpatrick, 2207 Millstream, pleaded guilty in Colwood RCMP court Wednesday to two charges of false pretences involving worthless cheques.

The court placed her on $500 bond for one month's good behavior.

Police said the accused passed cheques for $32 and $19 at Don Lowe's BA Service, Colwood, after her husband told her he would cover them with bank deposits, which were not made.

ASK THE TIMES

Q. Was Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie in the Legislature, born in Canada? N.D.P.

A. He was born in England in 1874 and came to Canada in 1906.

Q. Would you kindly inform me from whence our local car ferry Ss. Canora obtained her name? K.F.S.

A. It's an abbreviation for Canadian Northern Railways which built the vessel.

Teapots With 2 Spouts No Myth

By TONY DICKASON

Certain Victoria china salesmen and saleswomen are still bemused.

Today, with straight faces and high devotion to duty, a reporter and photographer made the rounds asking for a "two-spouted teapot."

Incredulity was the reaction. "You're kidding," said one young man. "You're pulling my leg!"

He was obviously an ex-serviceman who at some time in his career had been sent for the key to the starboard watch, or 100 yards of firing line.

A blonde young lady, in another large store, said, frankly, the questioners must have been seeing double, and sniffed, ever so slightly.

BUT THEY DO

But two-spouted teapots DO exist. They were used the other day in the "coffee club," which meets in Eaton's dining room, after they were mentioned in the Times "Penny Saver" column Jan. 4.

Among frequenters of this group is former city alderman Frank Mulliner.

"I'd never seen the two-spouters before, either," he said. "Couldn't believe my eyes."

"INTRIGUING"

The store's advertising department termed the idea of two-spouters "intriguing" and said they'd check into stock and see if there were any about, somewhere.

They were discovered in the sundries department, in four to six-cup size.

The specialized tea pot, made in England, pours two cups at a time, and operating looks like a Brown Betty fountain in a public square.

SOLD OUT

Spencer's Stores Ltd. also carried the pots, but were quickly sold out after the Times Penny Saver revelation. "We had only a half dozen. One man bought three. Said he hadn't seen them since he left England and wasn't even sure he'd seen them there."

The two-spouters, if they become popular, will mean a new conception in tea-cosies — two outlets.

And it will be messy to pour tea without a guest.

Winter Works Program Set At $2 Million

ANGRY FINGER OF ACCUSATION was pointed by service station operator George Taylor at a free parking windshield sticker, issued to 12 City Hall employees, which he claims are badges of discrimination against taxpayers.—(Times Photo.)

PARKING 'GIFT' TO CITY WORKERS BRINGS PROTEST

Two irate Cormorant Street merchants today blasted free parking privileges for 12 City Hall employees on the newly-opened civic off-street parking lot.

They pointed out this tied up more than 10 per cent of the 113-meter lot with all-day parkers that would produce no revenue.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said he had no knowledge of the situation but was prepared to recommend that city public works committee study the complaints and report to council.

George Taylor, service station operator, and George Alexander, lawn mower retailer, both said their customers were bitter about the "discrimination" as soon as the lot opened for the first time this morning, at Broad Street and Cormorant on the site of the demolished public market building.

PURPOSE DEFEATED

"I think creating the lot was a wonderful idea because it can make the property into a revenue-producer but the city is defeating its own purpose by giving free parking there to its employees," said Mr. Taylor.

"I haven't any complaint against free parking for city employees who use their cars for city business but these cars with red stickers are for office staff and they'll be parked on that lot all day."

"I don't see any reason why taxpayers' money should be used to provide free parking space for city employees. I've had four people tell me this morning already that they wouldn't park there because of it."

"Why should they have to pay when some get it free? They're no different than anyone else in City Hall."

Mr. Alexander said he received three complaints from customers within the first hour the lot was in operation.

WHAT RIGHT?

"They wanted to know how come some people were given red stickers for free parking," he said. "What right have the City Hall employees to the stickers?"

"That's as good as upping their salaries by $9 a month."

"I've watched this development with interest because I thought it would help business. But what good is it going to be if they fill it up with free parking?"

A City Hall official said the red stickers were issued only to employees who made at least "limited use" of their cars on city business.

He added that previously there had been some 30 cars belonging to City Hall employees that were parked free behind the public market "and now this number has been cut to 12."

Plan is to sell shares in the companies and run them as legitimate businesses for eight months, then liquidate.

It will be the first time the Jaycees "junior achievement

City's Share $421,050

A $2,000,000 provincial winter works program just approved by the B.C. treasury was outlined by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant today.

The Victoria area will receive works projects totalling $421,050 under the schedule.

Biggest single project listed is the provincial vocational training school at Burnaby, estimated to cost $1,000,000. The most expensive undertaking in this area will be cement work construction of the lower floors of the new Victoria Law Courts, $150,000.

DUAL PURPOSE

Mr. Chant said, "Having this work done in the winter serves two purposes. It fills a gap for construction workers in a normally slack construction period."

"And it means bidding contractors sharpen their pencils accordingly. There appears to be keener competition in the bidding for contracts. We can usually get better value for the taxpayers' dollar."

The minister said winter work is not as practical in interior areas of the province due to weather factors. "We are more fortunate on the coast, and in some cases (about 15 of those to be undertaken), we are able to save work for the winter period."

FIVE-PART PLAN

The minister listed the projects under five headings—projects under construction now, projects to be opened to tender before the end of January, projects to be let immediately, projects to be called in "mid-winter" and capital city projects, which will be undertaken by the department instead of let to contract, but which will require the hiring of extra day labor.

Projects under construction are:

- Burnaby Vocational School, $1,000,000.
- Victoria Law Courts excavation, $100,000.
- Motor Vehicles Building additional accommodation, $15,000.
- Polo Pavilion, Vancouver, storage space, $6,000.
- Fire escapes and kitchen alterations, Essondale, $36,000.
- Sprinklers, Vernon Home for Aged, $5,000.
- Alterations, Victoria College, $20,000.
- Girls' Industrial School grounds, $8,000.

IMMEDIATE JOBS

Projects to be let immediately include a new floor in the Provincial Health Building, Vancouver ($80,000); an incinerator for Essondale ($48,000) and installation of new telephone equipment at Essondale ($15,000).

Projects to be let before the end of January are: Elevators for Victoria Law Courts ($125,000); Mission Court House ($125,000); Abbotsford Poultry Testing Station ($50,000); Haney Correctional Institute improvements ($50,000); fencing of Nanaimo

School Children to Learn Business In Practical Way

Eight companies, operated by grade 10 and 11 boys and girls from city schools, will start here soon under auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Plan is to sell shares in the companies and run them as legitimate businesses for eight months, then liquidate.

Reason behind the scheme is to teach, on a practical basis, functions of today's business.

The Jaycees are still looking for office space in Victoria from which the youths will carry on their work.

If space is not donated, it will be rented.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Keep Losing Your Glasses? Spec-Grips Are for You!

By PENNY SAVER

Reading glasses always going astray? If you have trouble remembering where you left them last you should really take a peek at the spec-grips that seem designed for just such an occasion! Fitted on the temples of the glasses by means of an elasticized loop, these handy little gadgets will save the family much searching. Chain grips, priced at $2.50, come in gold, silver, blue, mauve, wine or bronze. Gold and silver snake chain variety sell for $3.

For real glamor, grips of scintillating rhinestones or others with tiny colored pearls can be bought for $5.50 and $5. Men are catered for in the corded variety that sell for $2. These come in black, white and brown.

Planning a trip this year? If you are you'll want to take a look at the travelling irons that sell for $12.95. Irons fold down completely flat and, if not exactly as light as a feather, weight is definitely under two pounds! Thermostatically controlled, iron comes in a zippered tartan case that's lined with red flannel.

Another electrical appliance that is worth looking at is the hot-dog cooker I saw this week. In two parts, the base is of black heat-resistant phenolic plastic. Twelve spikes will hold in place six wieners. Detachable top is of flame-resistant nylon and cooker works only when cover is in place. Quite safe!

To clean, you just sponge the cover while the base can be safely immersed in soapy water. Heating from the inside out, wieners are delicious after being cooked in appliance for 1½ minutes. Hot-dog-cooker-sells for $8.95.

It may be a little late but I can't resist telling about the little teenage girl, working as part-time help in one of the large departmental stores during the pre-holiday period.

Toward the end of the last shopping evening, shortly before closing time, crowds were still milling around her counter. Having just finished serving her last customer she wearily leaned on her arms and asked, "Now, why don't you all go home?" Cute?

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Age Can Creep Up on Us—Fight It Day by Day

Thank heavens the aging process is gradual! It happens to us day by day, just a little at a time, until the evidence accumulates and we suddenly realize that we look older.

This is a blessing for us women because we can fight the deterioration day by day. Even if we have damaged our appearance with long-time neglect, day-by-day care and corrective routines can make an unbelievable difference.

Proper care can turn the clock of age back in just eight weeks. That's what women like about my Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon. Anyone can stick to a beauty routine for that long and yet eight weeks is long enough to bring real results.

A woman younger and can look years younger after a loss of weight. The idea that she doesn't is usually circulated by those women who do not want to diet. The only reason some women don't look younger is because they eat a devalitized diet or lose a great amount of fat too rapidly.

Exercise is a great help because it firms while the pounds drop away. One woman who followed my directions lost 100 pounds in a year. She was not at all flabby and had no lines in her face. However, she followed the routines faithfully.

She was careful to eat correctly as well as to count calories, and she took plenty of time for her great loss in poundage. She also exercised regularly, even taking facial exercises.

I always tell reducers to take special care about skin lubrication, not only of the face and neck but of the body. The skin must shrink to your new proportions and keeping it pliable is a help. Use an oily cream on your face and neck and a good body lotion for the rest of you.

If you would like to lose from 15 to 20 pounds in eight weeks and/or correct other defects, you will want to join my marathon. Send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for my Eight-Week Self-Improvement Marathon booklet. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

cooled off he jumped into a marriage which he regretted right away.

"I am still single but I have no time for him because he is a married man now, and has been for six years.

Every time his wife goes to a hospital to have another baby he calls me at work and sends me telegrams begging me to see him. He says he still loves me. To tell you the truth, I still have a soft spot in my heart for him. I know I shouldn't see him; but how can I get him out of my heart before I weaken?

STILL CARE

DEAR STILL: There is nothing you can do about a "soft spot in your heart." Just make sure it doesn't spread to your head. Try to get interested in someone else. Nothing kills an old romance quicker than a new one.

DEAR ABBY: I have this to say to the mother of the retarded child who wrote that her mother-in-law mistreated the boy:

I am the father of a 7-year-old retarded child. I have been working for two years, striving to get instruction and recreation for these retarded children. I hope I can continue to work for this cause for the rest of my life.

As for the husband, I'd put him out just as fast as I'd put his mother out. Since he has permitted this to happen, he has ceased to be a man, let alone a father. I pray this grandmother will right her ways, and that the father (?) becomes a man before his retarded son, Billy, beats him to it.

Don't withhold my name if you print my letter. I am proud that God has singled me out to care for one of His "exceptional" children.

Yours truly,

Edward Byrnes.

DEAR ABBY: I can sympathize with that woman who was taunted by her in-laws because she had no sons; only daughters.

We have five daughters. My husband's brother, whose only achievement in life has been to sire four sons, loves to throw it up to us. What sort of come-back can I offer?

MOTHER OF GIRLS

DEAR MOTHER: Quote this little rhyme:

"Oh, my son's my son 'till he gets him a wife,
But my daughter's a daughter all her life."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Attractive place mats can be made with wallpaper and so inexpensively. They can be disposed of without qualms when necessary while minor spills can be wiped up with a damp cloth. Wallpaper is so versatile and useful. It adds to any home.

Plasticized fabric cloths that are attractive on the table and easy to wipe clean may be washed successfully. Soak the cloth in suds and scrub-soiled spots with a bristle brush. Then put through a short wash cycle in machine and dry in dryer at medium or low heat with a towel to buff. Press with a warm iron (set at "rayon") on the fabric side of the cloth.

Get on Track of Skin Woes Now

Teen-agers who have developed skin trouble during the holidays as the result of too many sweets should get back on the track now.

Stop the sweets and concentrate on a diet which includes meat, poultry, fish, cheese, fresh fruits and vegetables, hot cereal, eggs and lots of water. Stop the sundaes, soft drinks, candy and between-meal snacks.

Get lots of exercise in the open air. Try walking when your mother gives you an errand to do. You'll find that you enjoy it. Both the fresh air and the exercise can do a lot to clear up your skin.

Don't squeeze blackheads or pimples and don't touch your face with your hands, no matter how tempted you are. Keep your skin scrupulously clean. Use a mild soap, a clean washcloth and lots of clear, warm water.

And don't be self-conscious about your skin. Give your body half a chance and it will help skin to clear.

SOMETHING NEW!

In matters of beauty, have an open mind but avoid the extremes.

If you're mid-forties, don't turn up at an evening party with sequins on your eyelids. But equally, don't turn up your nose at new cosmetics.

new creams or new hand lotions. The woman who uses the same cosmetics faithfully year after year is not only in a rut, she is cheating herself. Because some place among the new creams and cosmetics is wouldn't be without them.

PRINCESS A BRIDESMAID FOR FIRST TIME

All dressed in white like the bride, Princess Anne rides to Romney Abbey, Romney, England, Wednesday for the wedding of Lady Pamela Mountbatten to David N. Hinch, an interior decorator. The young Princess was one of the five bridesmaids—her first appearance in such a role. The bride is a cousin of Queen Elizabeth. Girl at right is unidentified. (AP Wirephoto via radio from London.)

Head of Linen Guild Collecting For New Hospital in Jordan

A petite, silver-haired woman with bright blue eyes and a soft speaking voice, arrived in Victoria Wednesday afternoon. She is Mrs. H. Willis-O'Connor, Ottawa, chairman of the Linen Guild Association.

Mrs. Willis-O'Connor is presently travelling in western Canada to stimulate interest in forming new branches of the guild.

The St. John Ambulance Association is at present building a new ophthalmic hospital in Jordan, and much linen will be required when it opens in October," she explains.

"History of St. John began with the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem who founded the hospital during the Crusades, as a refuge for wounded," explains Mrs. Willis-O'Connor. "New building will replace one destroyed in war in 1948."

"For the past 12 years, a temporary hospital has been set up in two houses," she continues, "with as many as 8,000 patients being treated each month in the busy season!"

Mrs. Willis-O'Connor travelled to the Middle East two years ago.

"I wanted to see what conditions were there and to get ideas from hospital officials. It was a great help in understanding," she said.

ACTIVE WORKER
The widow of Col. H. Willis-O'Connor, who was aide-camp to five Canadian governors-general, Mrs. Willis-O'Connor has been active in St. John Ambulance work since the Second World War when she sewed and packed bales in Government House, Ottawa.

From this she became an organizer of a division of St. John.

"Actually I was a nursing sister... one of the lowest," she laughs. "I was then asked to be federal district superintendent until this appointment with the Linen Guild."

It is Mrs. Willis-O'Connor's responsibility to collect monies and donations which she sends on to linen guild headquarters in London.

Buying of sheets, towels, pillow cases, St. John Ambulance nursing uniforms and other items for the hospital is carried out in England," she explains.

The visitor was accompanied to the city by Mrs. Phyllis Munday, provincial superintendent of nursing in Vancouver. She spoke at an open meeting of Victoria Branch of St. John Ambulance Wednesday.

Guests received Wednesday night by Governor-General George P. Vanier and Mme. Vanier numbered close to 1,000. They included members of Parliament, judges of the supreme and exchequer courts, senators, Commonwealth high commissioners, church representatives and foreign diplomats.

Guests assembled at 10 p.m. following a state dinner for 100 guests in Rideau Hall ballroom. Immigration Minister Ellen Fairclough was the only woman present at the state dinner.

During the state dinner Mrs. Diefenbaker held a dinner for cabinet ministers' wives at the prime minister's residence, across Sussex Drive from Government House.

State dinner guests included lieutenant-governors of the 10 provinces and cabinet members.

Rideau Hall Reception
OTTAWA (CP) — For the first time since its post-war revival the Rideau Hall reception on the eve of the opening of Parliament had an elegantly-gowned vice-regal consort beside her Governor-General husband.

Unification of Germany Far in Future, College Professor Believes

There is no immediate hope of the unification of Germany, John Wood, staff member of Victoria College, told Women's Canadian Club Wednesday afternoon in the Empress Hotel.

"There are not too many people in Western Germany who want it at the moment and Eastern Germany doesn't want it."

The speaker traced the pattern of occupation of East and West Germany from Hitler's defeat, through the Tehran, Casablanca and Yalta conferences, and the decision to create the Berlin zone.

"Berlin was—and still is—the barometer in the cold war between East and West," he said.

Blockade of Berlin was pointed out as the crucial point where "things began to go wrong for the Russian power in Germany."

"The people of Berlin refused to be intimidated. In the face of that great military, political and economic might they still would not be coerced."

Food lift, made possible because of an agreement signed by Stalin, and giving a clear statement of skyways into Berlin, allowed the western powers to help bolster the hopes of the people.

Mr. Wood said while it appears that Russia does not want to give up her place in this "satellite empire," Mr. Khrushchev himself has shown various tendencies to discuss the problem... "but there are limits to the kind of solution he wants."

He believed "we should take more notice of what Mr. Khrushchev says."

Especially now—as a conference is shaping to discuss the problems of Berlin and of Germany.

AUDIENCE ENTHRALLED Wolfits Make Shakespeare Live

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Acting of sheer virtuoso quality was exhibited Wednesday night on the stage of the Royal Theatre, where Sir Donald Wolfitt and Rosalind Iden presented their program of Shakespearean highlights.
Wolfitt moved easily with clear delineation, from the Henry V Chorus, to his truly magnificent portrayal of the distorted, acidulously-humored Richard III, thence from the beleaguered Macbeth to the shrewd, witty Petruchio who out-rages the raging Katherine. In the characterization of each there was a clear mental concept, a complete and fully-dimensioned personality that produced a well-calculated effect on the audience.
For my own part, I felt that Rosalind Iden—who is Lady Wolfitt—well illustrated the difference between technically accomplished acting and technically accomplished acting—plus genius. Miss Iden's performance was well-studied and stylish but did not touch one emotionally.

As an example, her Lady Macbeth speech—"Make thick my blood, stop up the access and passage to remorse . . . which should chill the blood with its monstrous soullessness, held little more than classical interest.
And for that reason the "kiss me, Kate," courtship scene from "Taming of the Shrew," was on her part, the most satisfactory of the evening, in that technical competence and experience in the craft of comedy are sufficient to make it so.
Wolfitt's comedy, incidentally, is as brilliant and electrifying as his tragic portrayals can be, given the proper scope. In the matter of timing and accent, and in the full exploration of a scene's comic possibilities, he is delightful.
Macbeth was a bit of a disappointment to me, mainly, I feel, because this most melodramatic of Shakespeare's great tragedies, cannot really exist out of its context.
Even Wolfitt's outstanding gifts were not able to conjure sufficient mood and atmosphere (despite the ghostly clouds of dust that rose from the stage with each swoosh of Lady Macbeth's skirts) to make up for lack of the play's paraphernalia of dim stairways, knockings, witches and what-not.

MVD CONTROL SPLIT UP Secret Police Lose Power

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union announced Thursday that control of its MVD forces, which once ran Soviet prison camps, will be scattered among the 15 separate Soviet republics.
The MVD originally encompassed the powerful secret police and functioned under many names. MVD troops presently include Soviet frontier guards, local police and administrative personnel of Soviet prisons.
Russia also announced the firing of the man generally regarded as Premier Khrushchev's right-hand man from his high Communist party posts. Aleksei Kirichenko, one of six party central committee secretaries, a Khrushchev protégé and member of the party's ruling presidium, was shunted to the job of regional party secretary in the city of Rostov.

... fired

Ministry of Internal Affairs in Moscow and shifting of its powers to the constituent republics apparently was designed to eliminate another symbol of the Stalin era.
Announcement about the internal affairs ministry did not indicate what would become of MVD head Nikolai Dudorov who, like Kirichenko, has been understood to be a close friend of Khrushchev.
The move did not affect troops of the KGB—the Soviet internal security police—whose job is to combat threats to the state at home and abroad. The initials KGB stand for the Russian language equivalent of the committee of state security.
The sweeping decision ending control of MVD forces was the latest in a long series of police reorganizations throughout Soviet history. It appeared designed to follow Khrushchev's program to decentralize power and take it out of the hands of the police.

U.S. Navy Cutback
WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Navy announced Tuesday that lack of funds has forced postponement of construction of five ships. It said they are three guided missile frigates, a research ship and a cruiser being converted to guided missile use. Total estimated costs are more than $309,000,000.

Tourism Week Set For May 23 to 30

Tourist Appreciation Week, a device which its first chairman said contributed to an unparalleled awareness of the "importance of tourism to Victoria," will be held this year from May 23-30.

Members of the tourist trade group of Victoria Chamber of Commerce and TAW chairman, Dr. Hugh Borsman, set the date at an organizational meeting Tuesday.

This year's program will be essentially the same as for the inaugural TAW in 1959 with one exception. There will be no retail stores competition. Apart from the department stores, few businesses took enough interest to warrant a further competition.

125 ENTERED
But TAW buttons—with a generous reward for the lucky winner—TAW literature, student essay competition and adult questionnaire contest are all likely to be part of the 1960 promotion.

More than 125 entries were received in the student essay competition last year. This year the TAW committee will attempt to hold the competition in February instead of June when students are working toward examinations.

This year, as last, TAW will have representatives at a special booth in the Junior Chamber of Commerce fair at Memorial Arena. The fair starts May 16.

Chamber Group Backs TCA for Local Flights

A telephone call was the key factor Wednesday in the ultimate decision by the Harbor and Transportation group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce to back Trans-Canada Air Lines, rather than Pacific Victoria-Seattle air carrier.

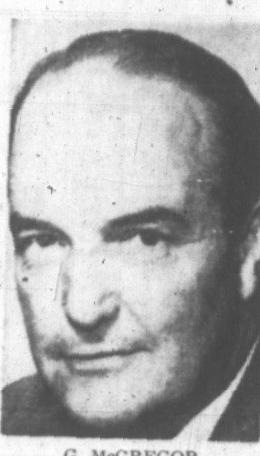

The caller, Mayor Percy Scurrell told the group meeting in James Bay Hotel, he was told by TCA president Gordon McGregor in Montreal . . . "we (TCA) are going all out to keep the (Island-Mainland) service."

PRIORITY FACTOR
Said the mayor: "Mr. McGregor told me TCA hasn't supported us in our attempt to get a new terminal building here because they never get all the money they ask for—there is a matter of priority in these things."

"Mr. McGregor said TCA was anxious to get new terminal buildings at Montreal and Ottawa where large numbers of passengers are handled. "I think he would go along with us if we pressed for a terminal at Pat Bay-Airport and I think we can get longer runways."

ENLARGED CAPACITY
The mayor said Mr. McGregor told him TCA plans to use five Viscounts, converted from 48 to 60-passenger capacity, on the Victoria-Vancouver service. His statement, coming after PWA sales-traffic director Harold Branneth said his company proposes three 40-passenger Fairchilders for the same service, appeared to sway the feeling of the group.
G. F. "Pat" Dunn immediately proposed that the group support "TCA as the prime carrier because it is a national carrier . . . it would be a retrogressive step to support a local carrier."

MANY ABSTAINERS
The motion passed without a dissenting vote although several members declined to vote. In backing TCA, the group shot down Mr. Branneth's arguments that:
1. "You are a feeder service. By TCA's planning you will remain a feeder service."
2. "The way to get longer runways and a transcontinental service is to have a carrier come in which has indicated it wants to provide that service. Canadian Pacific Airlines has indicated it would be willing to provide two transcontinental flights a day out of Victoria if TCA wasn't prepared to operate on that basis, and,

G. MCGREGOR
... "we'll fight"

3. "Regional carrier operation (such as the PWA Vancouver-Victoria proposal) will be one of the major developments in Canada in the future."

LOOK TO FUTURE
After hearing Mr. Branneth's claim that PWA could handle peak loads such as the 1,220 passengers TCA moved between Victoria and Vancouver Dec. 27, Mayor Scurrell said "We have been talking of past traffic loads but this is a growing community and we must think of the future."
"How can PWA with three aircraft meet the service which TCA will provide with five aircraft?"
"After hearing both sides I am unconvinced we are going to improve ourselves by endorsing PWA. I am being frank."

CHOICES FACED
Times publisher Stuart Keate said he thought Victoria's chances of getting transcontinental services would be "downgraded" if PWA became the Victoria-Vancouver carrier.

"We must ask ourselves which airline is looked upon with more favor by the national government—the local airline or the national airline. I believe we will all agree that the national airline is the most likely carrier to be favored."

Mr. Branneth and D. E. MacLaren, former flying ace and ex-TCA director, disagreed on whether TCA would use Viscounts as a feeder service only.

The PWA official claimed, TCA is "unlikely" to use converted Viscounts beyond Vancouver.

Mr. Branneth met no serious opposition when he claimed the three Fairchilders, capable of carrying 1,600 passengers a day on 40 Victoria-Vancouver round trips, could equal TCA's "excellent service and amazing capacity" to meet peak loads.

He admitted that peak loads on the Victoria-Seattle run, if they occurred at the same time as unusually heavy traffic on the Island-mainland schedule, would require PWA to use "back-up" equipment "which would be available."

THE QUEEN'S BABY

LONDON — The approaching birth of the Queen's third child, was news which delighted the peoples of Britain and the Commonwealth. But it has also raised one very serious question: Are we demanding too much of Her Majesty?

A timely warning was sounded by the last royal tour when the Queen was taken ill during her exhausting program of engagements in Canada. And soon the problem of the Queen's duties will become much more acute.

The Queen will be having a baby for the first time since she came to the throne. Despite the help of a nurse and a governess, she will naturally want to devote a great deal more of her time to her children.

No Precedent

There is no precedent for this situation. It is true that all of Queen Victoria's children—five girls and four boys—were born while she was reigning sovereign. But the royal diary has changed beyond recognition since those golden days of royalty. Engagements embrace a much wider field of public activity; royal touring especially has developed on a scale that would have horrified home-loving Victoria.

What is the answer? Clearly, the time has come when Prince Philip should be empowered to take over some of the Queen's official duties. But while the answer seems obvious, the issues involved are not so simple.

But Not Consort

The Queen's 38-year-old husband has acquired many titles and titles: Knight Commander of the Garter, First Gentleman of the Realm, His Royal High-

Tax Relief Demanded By Indians

MONTREAL (CP)—The Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy in an open letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower has demanded tax exemptions for North American Indians.

A grand council of the confederacy drafted the demand at a meeting Jan. 9-10 in Nedrow, N.Y., and a copy of the letter was released to the press here.

The confederacy said Canadian and United States Indians with incomes outside their reserves should have a retroactive exemption from taxes at the federal, state and provincial levels.

At present an exemption covers only incomes earned within the reserves.

The letter—signed by chiefs of the confederacy—said North America's Indians "are not citizens of Canada or the U.S. and therefore cannot be taxed as such."

"Since we are not citizens of Canada or the U.S. and do not vote in either government, we are being taxed without representation."

DEATH PENALTY COMMUTED

OTTAWA (CP)—The death sentence of Frank Ward, 26, of Montreal, sentenced to be hanged Friday for the shooting murder of Montreal storekeeper Jerome Paul, has been commuted to life imprisonment. It was announced Wednesday.

ness the Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth, Baron Greenwich, Field Marshal, Air Marshal, Admiral of the Fleet.

But under the existing constitution, Prince Philip has no real power—not even the power to vote. He is consort, but not prince consort. Like any commoner, he can sue and be sued.

When he became a naturalized British subject in 1947, he renounced his rights of succession to the thrones of Greece and Denmark. And when his engagement to Princess Elizabeth was announced in the same year, Lieutenant Philip Mountbatten knew that he would even forfeit a commoner's right to give his surname to his bride (the Queen remains head of the House of Windsor).

Big Salary

In fact, he is officially classified as holding "an office of profit under the Crown" (thus the government pays him $40,000 a year. (Allowing for the change in the cost of living, the allowance of Queen Victoria's Consort was worth at least double.)

Prince Philip's position is simply that he shares the Queen's life but not her throne. What would have to be done to enable him to share more of the Queen's responsibilities?

First, by an Act of Parliament or simply by Letters Patent—the method used by Victoria—the Queen could make her husband Prince Consort, the only remaining courtesy title higher than those he already possesses.

He would thus become the second Prince Consort in the history of the British monarchy—102 years after his great-great-grandfather, Prince Albert, cousin and husband of Queen Victoria, was given the title at the same age but only four years before his sudden death from typhoid fever.

Other Choices

But this alone, although officially consolidating Prince Philip's state position, would not increase his power.

Second, however, Mr. Macmillan and his cabinet could change the law whereby Prince Philip, as holding merely "an office of profit under the Crown," is barred from performing such essentially monarchical functions as state visits and the state opening of Parliament.

Or third, Prince Philip could become King Consort but with no right of sovereignty. He would still take second place to the Queen and the Windsor dynasty would remain unchanged.

Impossible? Not at all. The Queen, as the fountain of honor, has the unchallenged right to bestow whatever title lar dignity or precedence outside Parliament that she pleases.

Opposition Met

All three courses are bound to make the greybeards mutter. The first in bitter memory of that hounded and misunderstood Prince Consort, Albert. The second because it alters Britain's proven and unparalleled monarchical system. The third because it is without precedent and would be certain, in many circles, to meet violent opposition.

Prince Philip is said to have rejected the idea of his becoming Prince Consort, perhaps because of the sad memories it represents or possibly because the position of consort, princely or not, carries no special privileges in law.

And alone, it would solve nothing.

But couple it with the second course—a change in the law—and the Queen would have an official and invaluable working partner, enabling her to enjoy properly her family life and to fulfill her dual role of mother and monarch.

It is now six years since the Duke of Edinburgh walked from Westminster Abbey with his newly-crowned Queen and into a life of frightening complexity and contradiction.

Prestige Lifted

In those years he has built a unique bridge between Crown and people. He has done away with old concepts and crashed high barriers in modernising the throne. Scarcely in the history of the British monarchy has the prestige of the Sovereign and family been so high.

But all the time the royal tasks have been snowballing and there have been more and more marathon tours in an increasingly accessible Commonwealth. In contrast, Queen Victoria rarely travelled abroad officially.

Now, surely, with a growing Royal Family, it is time for Queen and Parliament to step forward and make Philip the Prince Consort and an official working partner. He should become Deputy Head of State with full powers to act on the Queen's behalf.

Unlike Albert

What about the Prince's own worries? Would he be bracketed willy-nilly with his malignant great-great-grandfather?

Woman Nearly Itches To Death

"I nearly itched to death for 7½ years. Then I found a new wondercreme. Now I'm happy," says Mrs. D. Ward of L.A. Here's a blessed relief from torments of vaginal itch, rectal itch, chafing, rash and eczema with an amazing new scientific formula called LANACANE. This fast-acting, stainless medicated creme kills harmful bacteria while it soothes raw, irritated and inflamed skin about. Stops scratching—no more itching. Don't suffer another minute. Get LANACANE today at all drug stores.

What nonsense!

He has proved himself, in mind and in courage, more than worthy of the special place he holds in the hearts of the British people.

Progressive, imaginative, articulate, handsome and masculine, he is far removed from his shy, introverted ancestor. During the 17 years of his marriage before he became Prince Consort, Albert (he was the son of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha) was in fact and in outlook a foreigner to the British people. During the 12 years of his marriage, and more particularly in the six years of his position beside the monarch, Philip, the former Greek Prince, has become the epitome of the British ideal.

Aware of Duty

And there can be no doubt of Philip's awareness of his duty—a duty to enter much more into the life of the nation than it was possible, or even desirable, for Albert to do.

Albert, for all his intelligence and energy, once wrote: "The husband (of a female Sovereign) should entirely sink his own individual existence in that of his wife."

Could Philip have penned such retiring words? Is it at all conceivable that Mr. Macmillan, like Lord Melbourne before him, should one day be forced to inform the Queen that her people have "no enthusiasm" for her consort?

The issue, surely, is clear-cut.

How can the Queen properly enjoy her growing family—and there is every reason to assume that, like Queen Victoria, she plans more additions—if she must continue at a pace which is making her history's most overworked monarch?

Should we increase Prince Philip's powers? Or are we to see another Canada-style debacle when, even after reports of the Queen's pregnancy, the tight, inhuman official program went ruthlessly on?

Now, more than ever, comes the time to face these facts.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI)—The air force today was considering the immediate withdrawal of the 16 men remaining on ice station Charlie in the Arctic Ocean because of new fissures in the floe only 500 feet from the camp occupied by the men.

Brig. Gen. Gordon H. Austin, commander of the 11th Air Division at Ladd Air Force base here, said that the air force has "no intention" of leaving the men in peril in order to remove the scientific equipment which remains on the floe.

Austin and Capt. James F. Smith, an expert on ice island breakups, were to inspect the ice floe early today and with Capt. Arthur Schroeder, head of the operation on Charlie, would decide whether to withdraw the men immediately.

Withdrawal of men and equipment from Charlie began a week ago when the ice station began disintegrating.

IT WAS 56 BELOW ZERO AT BEETLES, ALASKA

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP)—Temperatures of minus 50 or lower were reported in the Alaska interior Wednesday.

The coldest points listed by the weather bureau were Tanana and Beetles, at 56 below. Radio station KFRB reported an unofficial reading of 57 below at its Trant site near here early Wednesday.

3 Youths Accused As 96 Cars Stolen

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said Wednesday three car-crazy youths have been arrested in connection with the theft of 96 cars within one six-month period last year. Two of the suspects, aged 15 and 16, face trial in police court on a total of 59 charges of car theft. The 16-year-old was originally sentenced to industrial school in December for five car thefts, but was re-arrested Christmas Day during a holiday release and charged with another 42 offences, 15 of them during his holiday freedom.

A third youth, aged 15, now is at industrial school for three car thefts, but faces another 27 counts in juvenile court, police said.

About half of the stolen cars were sports models. Only one was damaged. "All they wanted to do was go for a joy ride," a detective said. "They were just car-crazy."

CONFIDENTIALLY YOURS

—by Byrne Hope Sanders

MONTREAL, Jan. 14th—No coaxing needed to get your youngsters to eat these favourite vegetables... AYLMER FANCY PEAS—ASSORTED SIZES. They are sure to be a favourite dish with all the family. So look for them in the bright, white tins and take them home for a family treat. Everyone will agree they're perfectly delicious. That's because they're grown on specially selected Canadian farms where sunshine, moisture, and soil are ideal. Then, at exactly the right moment of growth, they're harvested and rushed to nearby canneries, where they are sealed and cooked, often within the hour. Result: Aylmer Fancy Peas are the best you've ever tasted.

AT LAST!... HERE IS THE PERFECT ANSWER to the problem of how to have pure, delicious cream always on hand—ready to use in all kinds of cream recipes. Unopened, this fine country cream keeps its fresh quality indefinitely right on your cupboard shelf. And after the tin is opened, NESTLE'S PURE THICK CREAM stays fresh in the refrigerator as long as dairy cream. Nestle's Cream is perfect for dessert toppings, casserole dishes, in fact, for any recipe calling for the smooth richness and flavour of cream. That's because Nestle's Pure Thick Cream is exactly that... pure, thick, country cream. You'll agree, I'm sure, that this is the new, easy way to have delicious cream on hand whenever you need it.

HOORAY FOR A NEW DECADE! And hooray, too, for cheery family breakfasts, with everyone on tip-toe to be out and about the day's work. That's the way they'll feel with a breakfast of piping hot RED RIVER CEREAL. It's really good for old, young and middle-aged. All of us enjoy its nutty, wholesome blend of cracked wheat, rye and flax—as delicious as it's nourishing. Youngsters and active workers benefit from the energy values in Red River. For older folks, or sedentary workers, Red River is an excellent guard for regularity. Easy to prepare; cooks in a few minutes. Costs so little too... Your family deserves Red River!

HAPPY THOUGHT FOR A BRAND NEW YEAR!... your youngsters will love and thrive on this truly healthful treat that tastes like candy... new Wampole VITA-POPS. Yes, wild-cherry flavoured Vita-Pops look and taste like candy yet they're really vitamins. They contain precious vitamins A, C, D, and B 12, the vitamins so essential for sound growth and good health. Wise mothers make sure their children get their vitamin requirements by giving them just one Vita-Pop a day. I recommend a five weeks' supply of Vita-Pops at $2.50, or if you have several children—a fifteen weeks' supply at only $5.95.

A POPULAR PRODUCT is a little like a popular woman... it never sits on the shelf. Well, the popular product I'm thinking of is MIRACLE WHIP. It is bought enthusiastically from your grocer's shelves, and I'm sure it won't sit around in your cupboard at home! You see, the flavour of Miracle Whip is unique. It enhances other good flavours—without overwhelming them! Ask for the large, 32-ounce jar of Miracle Whip—the most popular size for convenience and economy and remember any portion of the Miracle Whip label entitles you to enter the Kraft TV Cameraman Contest. $10,000 First Prize! Get the full details from your food store now!

HERE'S SOME TAIL-WAGGING NEWS FOR YOUR DOG!... a brand new idea in dog nourishment. Dr. Ballard's BURGERBITS Dog Food is the new, full-course meal for meat-loving dogs! Burgerbits Dog Food has 19 choice, balanced ingredients in crunchy, munchy chunks that your pup will love to chew. With liquid or alone, it gives your dog all the food benefits and eating satisfaction he needs. It actually beats meat for nourishment... has twice the value of prime beef at half the cost! Yes, Dr. Ballard's Burgerbits Dog Food is a dog's full-course meal with appetite appeal PLUS.

A GOOD CHEF'S TRICKS, when once explained, are usually easy enough for all of us to follow. One trick, which I've learned, is the imaginative use of piquant MAGGI Chicken Bouillon Cubes. They make delicious snack and bed-time drinks of course (only 4 calories per serving, too)—but there's so much more you can do with them! For instance, if you always include Maggi Bouillon Cubes in your casserole recipes; in your stews, soups and gravies you will find they take on true, subtle gourmet flavour. Your family and guests will applaud! Look for the yellow and red Maggi Chicken Bouillon package... do!

BEAUTIFUL! Look at your enticing appetizer tray—ready for the party. The stars are AYLMER Gherkins—with that sunshine-fresh flavour we enjoy so much. Aylmer Gherkins can be used in so many ways! Cut them in two, cross-wise. Into each cut surface insert a whole blanched almond—and use for garnish. Make Gherkin Dolls to surround a chicken salad—with a small Gherkin for the body, a small pickled onion for the head, and four small Gherkins for arms and legs—put together with toothpicks. One of the famous Aylmer family of pickles which clever hostesses use all the time.

THIS IS THE MONTH TO RESOLVE to stop worrying about money problems and to do something about them. A few years ago, I made a solemn resolution to get my finances into better shape. The first thing I did was open a Personal Chequing Account at the BANK OF MONTREAL for paying bills and to help me keep track of my household expenses. Then I opened a B of M Savings Account, and I've found it the ideal place to "discipline" those few extra dollars! If you are resolved to control your expenses in '60—I can think of no better way than to open a Personal Chequing Account—and a Savings Account—strictly for saving... at "MY BANK".

THE VOICE OF TRUTH is a kindly one. I hear it in letters from men and women in every province who have found longed-for relief from neuritic, arthritic or rheumatic pain through taking TEMPLETON'S TRC's. I find that each of these writers is eager to pass on word to others who are suffering now—telling true stories of freedom from past agony. A worker who can resume his wage-earning; a mother who can resume her children properly again; a daughter who sees her father freed from misery—all say, "We've been helped by TRC's. They will help you too!" Do listen to this voice of experience and get TRC's from your drug store without delay.

Chan Asks to Sue Mrs. Fairclough

VANCOUVER (CP)—Chinese lawyer Harry Fan filed notice Wednesday that he will apply in Supreme Court here today for leave to issue a writ against Immigration Minister Mrs. Fairclough.

Mr. Fan, counsel for deportation dodger Weldon Chan, filed an affidavit stating he believes Chan has a good cause of action against Mrs. Fairclough for libel.

Earlier, Mr. Fan said he will attempt to have the deportation order against Hong Kong-born Chan reviewed by a judge of the B.C. Supreme Court.

WANTS DOCUMENTS

He filed notice late Tuesday that he will apply Friday to have all documents and evidence pertaining to Chan brought into court.

Chan disappeared from his home here several weeks ago and has been eluding immigration officials since. He is wanted for deportation, along with his wife and child, who are still in the Vancouver area.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Wednesday:

Andrew L. Rollins, 610 Dundas, $40 and licence suspension; Arthur E. MacLean, 3181 Aldridge, $35, for careless driving.

Douglas Ian Gordon, HMC Dockyard, $25 for driving without a licence and $10 for making an illegal left turn.

Peter John Campbell, 460 Kings, $15 for making an illegal U-turn and $10 for driving through a red light.

In Saanich police court Tuesday:

Ernest James West, 4 Lagoon, $20 for speeding over 30.

Wanneries of the Victoria Duplicate Bridge Club in individual tournament Tuesday night are as follows: Fenton Oldham, Marjorie Crookston, Fred Hallett, John Allen, Jo Waddington, Doug. Tuck, Otto Leesment and Nell Williamson.

SENATORSHIP is reported in the office for State Secretary Courtmanche according to the Ottawa Journal. Formerly deputy speaker of the Commons, Mr. Courtmanche, who represents the Quebec constituency of Labelle, has been state secretary since May, 1958.

IN VICTORIA DAY CELEBRATIONS

Navy Gets Starring Role

Warships in the Inner Harbor and military torchlight tattoo in Royal Athletic Park are among new ideas for this year's Victoria Day celebrations.

Preliminary planning by the celebrations association began Tuesday night at an annual meeting which re-elected Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow as chairman, Joseph Wright as vice-chairman and Mrs. Ethel Bishop as secretary-treasurer.

The holiday weekend this year will be observed May 21-23 "and will be tied in with the navy's 50th anniversary celebrations," said Mrs. Bishop.

But most of the traditional events and participating groups will be back too "and we're going to go all out on the parade this year," she added.

Opening ceremony for the weekend probably will be a torchlight tattoo by units of the army, air force and RCMP in Royal Athletic Park.

Annual Junior Chamber of Commerce May Queen contest will be decided on the Saturday night with the crowning ceremony either linked to a special naval sunset ceremony on the Legislative Building lawn Sunday evening or aboard a warship in the Inner Harbor.

Throughout the holiday, an RCN vessel will be moored in the Inner Harbor for public inspections. It will be illuminated at night.

Victoria Riding Academy plans major horse shows at Royal Athletic Park for the Saturday and Monday afternoons of the holiday. The Victoria Cycling Club will hold events in Beacon Hill Park. Both outboard and inboard boat clubs will stage their annual regatta at Elk Lake on Sunday.

"There are many other events to plan and we'll be getting down to detailed scheduling soon," Mrs. Bishop said.

Vanier Opens Session

Among main proposals of the speech at the opening of Parliament today:

- A new department to deal with forestry use and conservation.
- Granting of the franchise to Indians in federal elections.
- Legislation for a Canadian bill of rights.
- Revision of the Civil Service Act governing federal employees.
- Extension of the Trans-Canada Highway Act for an unspecified period beyond Dec. 31, 1961.
- Compulsory retirement of federally appointed judges at age 75.
- Extension of emergency gold mining assistance for three years.
- Changes in the National Housing Act.
- Measures to develop Columbia River hydro and to participate with British Columbia in joint development.
- Added status and responsibility for territorial councils of the Yukon and Northwest Territories.

OTTAWA (CP)—Plans to create a new ministry of forests to help spur national development and extension of the federal franchise to Indians highlight the government's legislative program disclosed today for the new session of Parliament.

The new department will be concerned, the Throne Speech said, "with affairs relating to the forests of Canada and their most effective utilization and conservation, and to assume responsibility for other related resources."

Government sources said a separate minister would be appointed to administer the new department of government.

The program, announced in the Speech from the Throne, also signalled further steps in Northern development with an increase in responsibility for the territorial councils and new oil and gas regulations to encourage Canadian ownership of these far-North resources.

Federal participation in the Trans-Canada highway program, lagging in some provinces, will be extended beyond the present cut-off date of next Dec. 31. For old age pensioners and recipients of the veterans' allowance living outside of Canada, the government plans to ease the present restriction which, in the case of pensioners, requires them to live in Canada at least six months of the year to collect payments.

FIRST CEREMONY

The speech from the throne was read in the Senate chamber by Governor-General Georges P. Vanier, officiating at his first parliamentary ceremony since his installation last September.

The speech said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposed bill of rights will be introduced again. Last session he

Two B.C. Judges Face Retirement

Two Supreme Court judges in British Columbia would be affected by the federal government proposal to force compulsory retirement at age 75. They are Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane, who is resident judge in Victoria, and Mr. Justice A. M. Manson, one-time B.C. attorney-general, who sits in Vancouver.

K Boasts of 'Incredible Weapon'—Orders Armed Forces Slashed

IS IT REAL?

Seeing is believing, or is it? Teapot seems to have sprouted new spout, perhaps due to Victoria's noted teapouring status and innumerable adherents. What ever mystery may be,

"pouder" Beverley Willmore, 1128 Collinson, appears unconcerned. One theory is two-spouter is mirage caused by drinking too much tea. (For the story, turn to page 17.)

PITIFUL SCENES AT AMSTERDAM

15,000 Flee as Dike Bursts During Storm

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (Reuters)—A dike burst during a blizzard today, forcing the evacuation of all 15,000 citizens of an Amsterdam suburb.

Every available navy and civilian vessel raced into the flooded Tuindorp Costaan district and snatched men, women and children from the top floors of their almost submerged homes.

The area is reclaimed land lying several feet below a canal leading to the North Sea.

By afternoon the breach had been widened to 75 yards. In the flooded streets only the tops of trapped buses and automobiles were visible.

A small armada of boats worked feverishly to evacuate all the marooned victims by nightfall.

Rescue workers struggled against a swift current to save soaked, shivering women carrying crying babies. Calls went out for more hands to help in the rescue operations.

Many of the pitiful refugees clutched household pets and small personal belongings.

WELDON CHAN

OTTAWA (CP)—The RCMP said today it is taking action to prevent any possibility of Weldon Chan, Hong Kong-born Chinese sought for deportation, causing a disturbance at the opening of parliament.

The force took this action following rumors that Chan planned to surrender to police during the opening ceremony.

An official of the force said it is normal police practice to check out such rumors. RCMP officers stationed on Parliament Hill for the opening of parliament would keep their eyes open and if Chan appeared would place him under arrest.

The RCMP and other police forces have been searching for Chan since he disappeared in Vancouver Nov. 2, the day before he and his family were to be deported to Hong Kong.

Immigration Minister Fairclough said today that Harry Fan, Chan's Vancouver lawyer, wrote to her last week asking permission for Chan to give himself up to Mrs. Fairclough today. However, Mrs. Fairclough replied in a letter to Mr. Fan that Chan should give himself up to the nearest immigration officer or the police.

HEAVY SNOW

Heavy snowfalls and slippery ice made the rescue work more difficult. icy winds whirled over the desolate scene.

Gas and electricity supplies were cut off by the floods.

Dutch navy dinghies, rafts and barges all joined in ferrying the population from their flooded houses to safety in Amsterdam.

Engineers at the dike fought a losing battle against the breach. They said the waters would pour through until they were level with the North Sea canal.

No casualties were reported but one official described the scene as a "miniature flood."

Rocket to Probe Life on Planets

NICE, France (UPI)—Russia disclosed today it plans an attempt to send rockets toward Mars and Venus equipped with instruments to determine if there is life on those planets.

An official Soviet report presented to the first international space conference here by Soviet space expert Anatoly Blagonravov also announced prior plans for a new series of satellite launchings and moon shots.

It said that the Soviets, at a "later date," but still in the near future, would attempt to probe Mars and Venus with life-detecting instruments.

Blagonravov also said that the Soviet Union is engaged in "preparation for manned flight into outer space." But he indicated the preparations may take some time.

Gibson Charge 'Damn Tripe' Says Minister

BY PETE LOUDON
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston Wednesday challenged an audience of truck loggers here to have guts enough to investigate charges by Gordon Gibson of corruption in the handling of tree farm licences.

He trembled with emotion and his voice choked with rage as he described the attack of the former Liberal M.L.A. and champion of wide open logging as "just so much damn tripe."

Mr. Williston said he would quit his office the minute anyone could prove the Gibson allegation "money still talks" in the issuance of tree farm licences.

EXTEMPORIZED

Mr. Williston was slated to open the business sessions of the 17th annual convention of the Truck Loggers' Association at Hotel Vancouver. He had a prepared speech, already released to the Victoria newspapers, suggesting an investigation of the loggers' pet beef—the tax load on the forest industry.

But he threw it down in disgust and anger after the luncheon address by Mr. Gibson. Instead, speaking without notes, he lashed out at Mr. Gibson "and those who clap and roar approval" when the integrity of the forestry ministry is attacked.

Mr. Williston appeared hurt not only by the Gibson attack, but at the reception of the Gibson speech by the 530 luncheon guests who heard it, and on occasion applauded the colorful sallies of the man who once was, to use his own words, "thrown out of the House" for offensive remarks.

HEARD IN SILENCE

The Gibson speech was offensive. Liberal leader Ray Perrault, who was in the audience, said he half expected Mr. Williston would walk out in the middle of it.

The minister had sat through the attacks, head bowed, unsmiling, taking notes. He had showed no emotion as the applause came or as former Liberal federal fisheries minister James Sinclair said "Hear, Hear" when the barbs sunk home.

Mr. Williston heard his government described as over-ambitious, cheap offsprings born out of wedlock (more colorfully worded by Mr. Gibson), enemies of the truck loggers, who would emasculate any men who seek opportunity in their own land—a one-man power-corrupted government which forbids free speech—candidates for a firing squad and proponents of a forestry

MOSCOW (AP)—Nikita S. Khrushchev said today Russia has blueprinted such "incredible" weapons it can discharge one of every three men in its armed forces in the next year or two.

In a three-hour speech to the Supreme Soviet the premier painted this picture:

"Incredible weapons" are being designed by Soviet scientists. "The arms we already possess are formidable, and those which are, so to speak, about to appear, are even better, even more formidable."

"The weapons which are being designed and which, as one says, are in the portfolios of scientists and designers, are incredible weapons."

The Soviet Army has firepower that no other army ever has possessed; rockets are taking the place of bombers and the production of bombers will cease. Production of industrial and consumer goods, together with labor productivity, increased last year more than the current seven-year plan called for. The United States is no longer the world's leading military power.

International tensions are lessening, and agreements are possible at the May summit meeting in Paris.

WON'T WAIT

Khrushchev told the Supreme Soviet that Soviet armed forces are currently at 3,623,000, down from a high of 11,000,000 in wartime and nearly 6,000,000 in the 1949-55 period.

Now, he said, plans are for a cut to 2,423,000 men. As he projected it, this reduction of 1,200,000 from the current figure will be brought about without waiting for the Western powers to join the Soviet Union in a disarmament program. Disarmament talks are due to start at Geneva this Spring.

AHEAD OF ALL

Khrushchev's demobilization announcement climaxed a long review of Soviet achievement during the last year in which he assured the 1,300 deputies that Russia is ahead of all other countries in the development and assembly line production of intercontinental ballistic missiles of various types. The premier said his government is able to cut its armed forces without hurting its defence potential because of the strength of its nuclear weapons.

STRONGEST IN HISTORY

"The Soviet Army wields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

"Now it is quite clear," he told the applauding delegates, "that the United States of America is not the world's most powerful military power. We are not trying to sweat anybody, but these are the facts."

But the "total trend" in international affairs was one of lessening of tension. His agreement with Eisenhower, President de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan to begin the first of a series of summit conferences in Paris May 6 was an important sign of this.

"We are deeply convinced that, having a mutual desire to settle all disputed questions, one may come to an agreement."

H-Bomb To Hang In Orbit?

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Nuclear scientist Ralph E. Lapp said today the Russians may be working on an "orbital H-bomb" which could be stationed in space and launched or recalled at will.

"A recallable bomb in orbit around the earth would have tremendous impact upon the world as a psychological terror weapon," Lapp said.

Lapp, who worked in the U.S. atomic bomb project during the Second World War, also suggested that the Russians may have developed a long-range missile of super power and super accuracy capable of delivering a 100-megaton warhead on targets continents away.

A 100-megaton warhead would have the explosive violence of 100 million tons of TNT. The A-bomb which destroyed Hiroshima was a 20,000-ton weapon.

Lapp, now a writer on nuclear affairs, made these suggestions in commenting on the statement by Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev that Russia is working on a "fantastic weapon" of "incredible" power.

Little Comfort Says Pearson

OTTAWA (UPI)—Opposition leader Lester Pearson said today that it would be "foolish" to think that the Soviet reduction of its armed forces would help disarmament.

Pearson said Russia, "may be altering its armaments rather than reducing them" because of the development of "new and unprecedentedly powerful weapons."

"If one missile and 100 men will do the work of 1,000 men with other arms, to discharge 900 men from the forces may not help the cause of disarmament very much," the statement said.

REORGANIZING NOT DISARMING

Less Men, More Machines

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev is reorganizing rather than disarming.

His claims to disarmament, in fact, are substantially contradicted by his words about the growth of Russia's nuclear weapons and rocket power.

These points highlighted initial reaction in official quarters here today to Khrushchev's speech before the Supreme Soviet.

His announcement of a manpower cut did not come as a surprise. Earlier remarks by Khrushchev—and the labor needs of Soviet industry and agriculture—had foreshadowed such a move.

Khrushchev claimed the manpower cut was a contribution to disarmament but at another point in his speech, Khrushchev said that since no agreement has been reached with the Western powers to stop production of nuclear weapons—"we are compelled to continue this production."

In a third section he argued that "the Soviet army wields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

In other words, the manpower cut by Khrushchev's own testimony does not mean a cut in striking power. What it obviously signifies is a shift from reliance on masses of men to reliance on masses of machines and nuclear weapons.

His emphasis on disarmament is construed rather as a means of making propaganda out of necessity.

The necessity, authorities here said, arises from the fact that as a result of the loss in birth rate in the war, Russia is developing a manpower shortage.

Therefore the Soviet government needs to switch men from the armed forces to industry and agriculture whenever it can do so without impairing Soviet security.

Teapots With 2 Spouts No Myth

By TONY DICKASON

Certainly, Victoria china salesmen and saleswomen are still bemused.

Today, with straight faces and high devotion to duty, a reporter and photographer made the rounds asking for a "two-spouted teapot."

Incredulity was the reaction. "You're kidding," said one young man. "You're pulling my leg!"

He was obviously an ex-serviceman who at some time in his career had been sent for the key to the starboard watch, or 100 yards of firing line.

A blonde young lady, in another large store, said, frankly, the questioners must have been seeing double, and sniffed, ever so slightly.

BUT THEY DO

But two-spouted teapots DO exist. They were used the other day in the "coffee club," which meets in Eaton's dining room, after they were mentioned in the Times "Penny Saver" column Jan. 4.

Among frequenters of this group is former city alderman Frank Mulliner.

"I'd never seen the two-spouters before, either," he said. "Couldn't believe my eyes."

"INTRIGUING"

The store's advertising department termed the idea of two-spouters "intriguing" and said they'd check into stock and see if there were any about, somewhere.

They were discovered in the sundries department, in four to six-cup size.

The specialized tea pot, made in England, pours two cups at a time, and operating looks like a Brown Betty fountain in a public square.

SOLD OUT

Spencer's Stores Ltd. also carried the pots, but were quickly sold out after the Times Penny Saver revelation.

"We had only a half dozen. One man bought three. Said he hadn't seen them since he left England and wasn't even sure he'd seen them there."

The two-spouters, if they become popular, will mean a new conception in tea-cosies — two outlets.

And it will be messy to pour tea without a guest.

Winter Works Program Set At $2 Million

City's Share $421,050

A $2,000,000 provincial winter works program just approved by the B.C. treasury was outlined by Public Works Minister W. N. Chant today.

The Victoria area will receive works projects totalling $421,050 under the schedule.

Biggest single project listed is the provincial vocational training school at Burnaby, estimated to cost $1,000,000.

The most expensive undertaking in this area will be cement work construction of the lower floors of the new Victoria Law Courts, $150,000.

DUAL PURPOSE

Mr. Chant said, "Having this work done in the winter serves two purposes. It fills a gap for construction workers in a normally slack construction period."

"And it means bidding contractors sharpen their pencils accordingly. There appears to be keener competition in the bidding for contracts. We can usually get better value for the taxpayers' dollar."

The minister said winter work is not as practical in interior areas of the province due to weather factors. "We are more fortunate on the coast, and in some cases (about 15 of those to be undertaken), we are able to save work for the winter period."

FIVE-PART PLAN

The minister listed the projects under five headings—projects under construction now, projects to be opened to tender before the end of January, projects to be let immediately, projects to be called in "mid-winter" and capital city projects, which will be undertaken by the department instead of let to contract, but which will require the hiring of extra day labor.

Projects under construction are: Burnaby Vocational School, $1,000,000; Victoria Law Courts excavation, $100,000; Motor Vehicles Building additional accommodation, $15,000; Police Pavilion, Vancouver, storage space, $6,000; Fire escapes and kitchen alterations, Essondale, $36,000; Sprinklers, Vernon Home for Aged, $5,000; Alterations, Victoria College, $20,000; Girls' Industrial School grounds, $8,000.

Projects to be let immediately include a new floor in the Provincial Health Building, Vancouver ($80,000); an incinerator for Essondale ($48,000) and installation of new telephone equipment at Essondale ($15,000).

Projects to be let before the end of January are: Elevators for Victoria Law Courts ($125,000); Mission Court House ($125,000); Abbotsford Poultry Testing Station ($50,000); Haney Correctional Institute improvements ($50,000); fencing of Nanaimo.

PARKING 'GIFT' TO CITY WORKERS BRINGS PROTEST

Two irate Cormorant Street merchants today blasted free parking privileges for 12 City Hall employees on the newly-opened, civic off-street parking lot.

They pointed out that tied up more than 10 per cent of the 113-meter lot with all-day parkers that would produce no revenue.

Mayor Percy Scourrah said he had no knowledge of the situation but was prepared to recommend that city public works committee study the complaints and report to council.

George Taylor, service station operator, and George Alexander, lawn mower retailer, both said their customers were bitter about the "discrimination" as soon as the lot opened for the first time this morning, at Broad Street and Cormorant on the site of the demolished public market building.

PURPOSE DEFEATED

"I think creating the lot was a wonderful idea because it can make the property into a revenue producer but the city is defeating its own purpose by giving free parking there to its employees," said Mr. Taylor.

"I haven't any complaint against free parking for city employees who use their cars for city business but these cars with red stickers are for office staff and they'll be parked on that lot all day."

"I don't see any reason why taxpayers' money should be used to provide free parking space for city employees. I've had four people tell me this morning already that they wouldn't park there because of it."

"Why should they have to pay when some get it free? They're no different than anyone else in City Hall."

Mr. Alexander said he received three complaints from customers within the first hour the lot was in operation.

WHAT RIGHT?

"They wanted to know how come some people were given red stickers for free parking," he said. "What right have the City Hall employees to the stickers?"

"That's as good as upping their salaries by $9 a month."

"I've watched this development with interest because I thought it would help business. But what good is it going to be if they fill it up with free parking?"

A City Hall official said the red stickers were issued only to employees who made at least "limited use" of their cars on city business.

He added that previously, there had been some 30 cars belonging to City Hall employees that were parked free behind the public market and now this number has been cut to 12.

School Children to Learn Business In Practical Way

Eight companies, operated by grade 10 and 11 boys and girls from city schools, will start here soon under auspices of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Plan is to sell shares in the companies and run them as legitimate businesses for eight months, then liquidate. It will be the first time the Jaycees "junior achievement

Farmers Ask School Tax Royal probe

A royal commission enquiry into the complaint that B.C. farmers are overtaxed for schools and municipal services was requested of the provincial cabinet today by the B.C. Federation of Agriculture.

This was the main point in a long brief submitted to a cabinet meeting by H. D. Arnold of Duncan, president of the federation; manager C. E. S. Walls of Victoria and eight others.

The farmers also asked an enabling act by the province to make effective here the federal Crop Insurance Act. Under the scheme the federal government would provide loans of up to 75 per cent of losses and would share equally with the province the administration costs of the plan and 20 per cent of the annual premiums—balance being paid by the farmer.

SPECIALIST WANTED

The federation also asked a specialist in horticultural markets be appointed to advise farmers how to balance their production with market demand. And a survey was asked, to determine the future food requirements of B.C. urban areas as a guide to production.

It was recommended the milk board be given authority to set resale price of milk products, to protect local markets for local producers against inroads by mass production urban dairy products manufacturers.

LOSS LEADERS HIT

Also requested was legislation to halt "loss leader" retailing of farm produce, which makes competing stores demand farm products at a price which would enable them to compete with the loss leader price, and depresses the farm market.

The farmers ask that imported goods packaged in B.C. show the country of origin on the package. They ask that in labor disputes affecting perishable farm commodities, where conciliation fails, the dispute be settled by compulsory arbitration by a Supreme Court judge.

First Complaint Against Cabbie Cost Him $15

Cab driver Finlay Derwood Morrison, 870 Esquimalt, got his first complaint about driving today—from Magistrate William Ostler.

Morrison was charged in city police court with driving through a red light, pleaded guilty and was fined $15, agreeing to drive only for business purposes for two months.

The magistrate noted previous traffic offences and remarked:

"When people find out about your driving, you won't have many fares."

"I've had no complaints from my passengers, your honor," Morrison replied.

"You're getting a complaint now—from me," Mr. Ostler rejoined, warning the cabbie a future appearance would mean outright suspension of his licence.

'VACANCY' SIGN FLASHED AT CITY JAIL

For the first time in about five years the city jail had only one prisoner Wednesday.

This morning there were only five additional inmates, all brought in by Saanich police.

The situation was unusual, particularly for this time of year when the daily average prisoner count is 20-25.

Last February there were as many as 40 in the lockup over a 24-hour period, with a daily average of 25-30.

500 Homes Phoneless In Big Blow

Winds that reached 67 miles per hour in gusts Wednesday night disrupted telephone service in about 500 Greater Victoria homes, a B.C. Telephone Co. official said today.

Elsewhere the wind, which picked up speed in mid-afternoon and averaged 40 miles per hour until midnight, managed only to break a few branches, blow down power wires at nine homes, and cause four chimney fires—two in the city and two in Oak Bay.

SALT ACTION

Telephone trouble is caused by action of salt air, which gradually weakens the wire, and vibration in high winds, which finally cause it to break.

"After every really high wind we have a number of calls about loss of service, and all for this reason," the official said. "But we had extra help on the job, and everyone had service again by today."

Waterfront damage was practically non-existent. Because of the Turkey Head breakwater now creeping toward Mary Tod Island, Oak Bay Boat House floats came through the storm without damage.

"This is the first time we have left the main floats out for the winter," said Mrs. Sarah Faith, manager at the boat house. "We took a chance on the breakwater giving enough protection, and it has been fine."

SNOW POSSIBLE

Weatherman William Mackie predicted cloudy skies with clear periods for tonight and Friday, and temperatures ranging between a chilly 26 degrees in the coldest areas tonight and 40 degrees Friday.

There is the possibility of showers, and conditions might be right for them to turn into wet snow occasionally, he said.

In sharp contrast to Wednesday, wind tonight will be southerly at about 20 miles per hour, he said.

Another weather disturbance heading this way from mid-Pacific is expected to give more blustery weather late Friday or early Saturday.

"VICKY" HINCH ... have you seen her?

Help of Public Asked to Locate Missing Girl

Saanich police today asked public co-operation to find the whereabouts of 15-year-old Victoria Wray "Vicky" Hinch, missing from her home at 3965 Telegraph Bay Road since Tuesday morning.

The Lansdowne Junior High pupil is described as five feet four inches tall, short dark brown curly hair, blue eyes, a small scar on the left forehead and a mole at the hair parting.

When last seen she was wearing a long black and white checked coat, navy blue flat-heeled shoes, a blue tartan skirt and white blouse.

Anyone having information about the girl is asked to contact the Saanich police at GR 9-1616.

Cambrian Salvor... fuel transfer only hope for freighter.

City Tug Fights to Save Ship Sinking in Pacific

The Island Tug and Barge Ltd. Yokohama-based tugboat Cambrian Salvor is making a last-ditch stand today to save Panamanian freighter Ss. Gambler, in a sinking condition about 800 miles east of Japan.

Condition of the ship has greatly worsened overnight.

Her foredeck is now under two feet of water, and she is taking water in her mid-tanks.

Only hope is to get fuel aboard so the freighter's own pumps can hold back the in-rushing water.

The Gambler's master told Capt. James Van Komodo of the Cambrian Salvor he would stay aboard until the last instant.

AID BEING RUSHED

Rushing to the aid of Cambrian Salvor in her fight to save the Gambler is the Salvor's sister ship, the Victoria-based Sudbury II. She is expected to reach the scene Friday.

Salvor has managed to transfer some fuel oil to the freighter, and has been authorized to empty her tanks if necessary to get the freighter's pumps working.

Capt. Von Komodo, wireless Norman Turner, Island Tug Marine superintendent who is supervising the operation from Yokohama, today that "Gambler will be lost tomorrow if we do not supply necessary oil. Weather is worsening."

Gale-force winds have been hampering the rescue operation since it started Monday.

FUEL GONE

The Gambler was bound for Japan with a cargo of 6,700 tons of scrap iron. She suffered two mechanical breakdowns in the Pacific, then ran out of fuel.

First water taken in the ship was in No. 1 hold—the hold nearest the bow of the ship. Then water entered No. 2 hold, finally the mid-tanks.

Three small emergency pumps put aboard by Cambrian Salvor failed to keep the water in check.

Name of the master of Gambler is not known. It is believed there are between 30 and 40 crew members aboard. They have been without heat or light for nearly a week. Emergency food supplies have been passed to them by the Salvor.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Shocks from the earthquake which killed 63 persons in Peru, Bolivia, and Chile Wednesday were recorded on the seismograph at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, according to W. G. Milne, seismologist.

Recordings proved the quake to be as strong as that which rocked Montana and Wyoming last summer, Mr. Milne said.

Victoria architect John di Castri will address the monthly meeting of the Vancouver Island section, Canadian Institute of Forestry, in the Trousdale Hotel, Duncan, Friday.

His subject will be "Future Trends in Architecture."

Mr. di Castri is well-known for his creative uses of native B.C. woods in home construction, and is one of the national winners in the Trend Home competition sponsored by the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association.

Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan will present the government point of view on the Wenner-Gren developments in northern B.C. at a Victoria Labor Council panel discussion Saturday.

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan and Pat O'Neal, secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor, will attack the scheme. The panel starts at 9:30 a.m. in the Labor Hall.

Sentence was suspended when Barbara Margaret Kilpatrick, 2207 Millstream, pleaded guilty in Colwood RCMP court Wednesday to two charges of false pretences involving worthless cheques.

The court placed her on $500 bond for one month's good behavior.

Police said the accused passed cheques for $32 and $19 at Don Lowe's BA Service, Colwood, after her husband told her he would cover them with bank deposits, which were not made.

Judgment on a charge of drug possession against 46-year-old James S. Scouler, 931 Inverness, was deferred in Oak Bay police court Wednesday to next Tuesday.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded the case after hearing evidence in the first of four charges faced by Scouler in Oak Bay court, after which he will deal with 13 similar charges in city police court.

The charges relate to possession of three types of drugs which are restricted by regulations of the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act. Charges were laid by the RCMP.

Works Minister W. N. Chant and Saanich MLA John Tisdale will speak at a public meeting at 8 tonight at Lake Hill Women's Institute Hall, Quadra and Lodge. Mr. Chant said his address would be a report on government policies and would cover a wide range of subjects.

C. A. Waggoner, chemist in charge of industrial chemistry, Pacific Naval Laboratory, HMC Dockyard, will be guest speaker Tuesday, Jan. 19 at the 8 p.m. meeting of the Vancouver Island chapter, American Society for Metals.

He will speak on "Modern Methods of Metal Analysis" at the Dockyard officers' club.

Hans Hegenbart, of Victoria, altered his plea to "guilty" when he appeared in city police court today charged with assault causing bodily harm to a young woman Dec. 23.

He had earlier pleaded not guilty to the charge, arising from an argument following an office party, leading to his striking her with his hand, knocking her to the ground and kicking her in the head.

Magistrate William Ostler remanded the accused to Tuesday for probation report and sentence.

Canadian Pacific Railway Pensioners' Association will hold its annual meeting Tuesday at 2 p.m. in the Crystal Garden, 701 Douglas.

Annual New Year's banquet of the Esquimalt Golden Age Club will be held Wednesday, Jan. 20, at 5 p.m. at Esquimalt Community Hall. Reservations may be made by phone at EV 5-3875 or EV 4-3218.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court today: James Cullingford, 135 Beechwood, $20 and one month licence suspension, for speeding over 30.

Marguerite Lee-Wright, Sidney, $40; Ronald Steven West, 729 Market, $40 and licence suspension; Bruce McBurnie, 729 Gladia, $40 and licence suspension, for careless driving.

Andrew Anthony Gold, 601 Belmont, $10 for disobeying a traffic sign.

THE QUEEN'S BABY

LONDON — The approaching birth of the Queen's third child was news which delighted the peoples of Britain and the Commonwealth. But it has also raised one very serious question: Are we demanding too much of Her Majesty?

A timely warning was sounded by the last royal tour when the Queen was taken ill during her exhausting program of engagements in Canada. And soon the problem of the Queen's duties will become much more acute.

The Queen will be having a baby for the first time since she came to the throne. Despite the help of a nurse and a governess, she will naturally want to devote a great deal more of her time to her children.

No Precedent

There is no precedent for this situation. It is true that all of Queen Victoria's children—five girls and four boys—were born while she was reigning sovereign. But the royal diary has changed beyond recognition since those golden days of royalty. Engagements embrace a much wider field of public activity; royal touring especially has developed on a scale that would have horrified home-loving Victoria.

What is the answer? Clearly, the time has come when Prince Philip should be empowered to take over some of the Queen's official duties. But while the answer seems obvious, the issues involved are not so simple.

But Not Consort

The Queen's 38-year-old husband has acquired many styles and titles: Knight Commander of the Garter, First Gentleman of the Realm, His Royal High-

Tax Relief Demanded By Indians

MONTREAL (CP)—The Six Nations Iroquois Confederacy in an open letter to Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower has demanded tax exemptions for North American Indians.

A grand council of the confederacy drafted the demand at a meeting Jan. 9-10 in Nedrow, N.Y., and a copy of the letter was released to the press here.

The confederacy said Canadian and United States Indians with incomes outside their reserves should have a retroactive exemption from taxes at the federal, state and provincial levels.

At present an exemption covers only incomes earned within the reserves.

The letter—signed by chiefs of the confederacy—said North America's Indians "are not citizens of Canada or the U.S. and therefore cannot be taxed as such."

"Since we are not citizens of Canada or the U.S. and do not vote in either government, we are being taxed without representation."

DEATH PENALTY COMMUTED

OTTAWA (CP)—The death sentence of Frank Ward, 26, of Montreal, sentenced to be hanged Friday for the shooting murder of Montreal storekeeper Jerome Paul, has been commuted to life imprisonment, it was announced Wednesday.

ness the Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth, Baron Greenwich, Field Marshal, Air Marshal, Admiral of the Fleet.

But under the existing constitution, Prince Philip has no real power—not even the power to vote. He is consort, but not prince consort. Like any commoner, he can sue and be sued.

When he became a naturalized British subject in 1947, he renounced his rights of succession to the thrones of Greece and Denmark. And when his engagement to Princess Elizabeth was announced in the same year, Lieutenant Philip Mountbatten knew that he would even forfeit a commoner's right to give his surname to his bride (the Queen remains head of the House of Windsor).

Big Salary

In fact, he is officially classified as holding "an office of profit under the Crown" (thus the government pays him £40,000 a year. (Allowing for the change in the cost of living, the allowance of Queen Victoria's Consort was worth at least double).

Prince Philip's position is simply that he shares the Queen's life but not her throne. What would have to be done to enable him to share more of the Queen's responsibilities?

First, by an Act of Parliament or simply by Letters Patent—the method used by Victoria—the Queen could make her husband Prince Consort, the only remaining courtesy title higher than those he already possesses.

He would thus become the second Prince Consort in the history of the British monarchy—102 years after his great-great-grandfather, Prince Albert, cousin and husband of Queen Victoria, was given the title at the same age but only four years before his sudden death from typhoid fever.

Other Choices

But this alone, although officially consolidating Prince Philip's state position, would not increase his power.

Second, however, Mr. Macmillan and his cabinet could change the law whereby Prince Philip, as holding merely "an office of profit under the Crown," is barred from performing such essentially monarchical functions as state visits and the state opening of Parliament.

Or third, Prince Philip could become King Consort but with no right of sovereignty. He would still take second place to the Queen and the Windsor dynasty would remain unchanged.

Impossible? Not at all. The Queen, as the fountain of honor, has the unchallenged right to bestow whatever titles

Opposition Met

All three courses are bound to make the greybeards mutter. The first in bitter memory of that hounded and misunderstood Prince Consort, Albert. The second because it alters Britain's proven and unparalleled monarchical system. The third because it is without precedent and would be certain, in many circles, to meet violent opposition.

Prince Philip is said to have rejected the idea of his becoming Prince Consort, perhaps because of the sad memories it represents or possibly because the position of consort, princely or not, carries no special privileges in law.

And alone, it would solve nothing.

But couple it with the second course—a change in the law—and the Queen would have an official and invaluable working partner, enabling her to enjoy properly her family life and to fulfill her dual role of mother and monarch.

It is now six years since the Duke of Edinburgh walked from Westminster Abbey with his newly-crowned Queen and into a life of frightening complexity and contradiction.

Prestige Lifted

In those years he has built a unique bridge between Crown and people. He has done away with old concepts and crashed high barriers in modernizing the throne. Sel-dom in the history of the British monarchy has the prestige of the Sovereign and family been so high.

But all the time the royal tasks have been snowballing and there have been more and more marathon tours in an increasingly accessible Commonwealth. In contrast, Queen Victoria rarely travelled abroad officially.

Now, surely, with a growing Royal Family, it is time for Queen and Parliament to step forward and make Philip the Prince Consort and an official working partner. He should become Deputy Head of State with full powers to act on the Queen's behalf.

Unlike Albert

New Threat to Men on Ice

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (UPI)—The air force today was considering the immediate withdrawal of the 16 men remaining on ice station Charlie in the Arctic Ocean because of new fissures in the ice only 500 feet from the camp occupied by the men.

Brig. Gen. Gordon H. Austin, commander of the 11th Air Division at Ladd Air Force base here, said that the air force has "no intention" of leaving the men in peril in order to remove the scientific equipment which remains on the ice.

Austin and Capt. James F. Smith, an expert on ice island breakups, were to inspect the PLANNED BY OTTAWAGibson Charge

'So Much Tripe'
Says MinisterBy PETE LOUDON
Times Political Reporter

VANCOUVER — Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston Wednesday challenged an audience of truck loggers here to have guts enough to investigate charges by Gordon Gibson of corruption in the handling of tree farm licences.

He trembled with emotion and his voice choked with rage as he described the attack of the former Liberal M.L.A. and champion of wide open logging as "just so much damn tripe."

Mr. Williston said he would quit his office the minute anyone could prove the Gibson allegation "money still talks" in the issuance of tree farm licences.

WILLISTON
... choked with rage

EXTemporized

Mr. Williston was slated to open the business sessions of the 17th annual convention of the Truck Loggers' Association at Hotel Vancouver. He had a prepared speech, already released to the Victoria newspapers, suggesting an investigation of the loggers' pet beef — the tax load on the forest industry.

But he threw it down in disgust and anger after the luncheon address by Mr. Gibson. Instead, speaking without notes, he lashed out at Mr. Gibson "and those who clap and roar approval" when the integrity of the forestry ministry is attacked.

Mr. Williston appeared hurt not only by the Gibson attack, but at the reception of the Gibson speech by the 350 luncheon guests who heard it, and on occasion applauded the colorful sallies of the man who once was, to use his own words, "thrown out of the House" for offensive remarks.

HEARD IN SILENCE

The Gibson speech was of intense. Liberal leader Ray Perrault, who was in the audience, said he half expected Mr. Williston would walk out in the middle of it.

The minister had sat through the attacks, head bowed, unsmiling, taking notes. He had showed no emotion as the applause came or as former Liberal federal fisheries minister James Sinclair said "Hear, Hear" when the barbs sunk home.

Mr. Williston heard his government described as over-ambitious, cheap offsprings born out of wedlock (more colorfully worded by Mr. Gibson), enemies of the truck loggers, who would emasculate any men who seek opportunity in their own land — a one-man power-corrupted government which forbids free speech — candidates for a firing squad and proponents of a forestry

RCMP
Alerted
For Chan

OTTAWA (CP) — The RCMP said today it took action to prevent any possibility of Weldon Chan, Hong Kong-born Chinese sought for deportation, causing a disturbance at the opening of parliament.

The force took this action following rumors that Chan planned to surrender to police during the opening ceremony. An official of the force said it is normal police practice to check out such rumors. RCMP officers stationed on Parliament Hill for the opening of parliament would keep their eyes open and if Chan appeared would place him under arrest.

The RCMP and other police forces have been searching for Chan since he disappeared in Vancouver Nov. 2, the day before he and his family were to be deported to Hong Kong.

Immigration Minister Fairclough said today that Harry Fan, Chan's Vancouver lawyer, wrote to her last week asking permission for Chan to give himself up to Mrs. Fairclough today. However, Mrs. Fairclough replied in a letter to Mr. Fan that Chan should give himself up to the nearest immigration officer or the police.

SEATTLE (AP) — Bill Muncey, driving Miss Thriftway, will attempt to break the world speed record for propeller-driven hydroplanes Feb. 15 on Lake Washington.

'Red' to Return

VANCOUVER (CP) — Red McMillan may come out of retirement to coach Nanaimo in the Inter-City Lacrosse League.

The men who masterminded Victoria Shamrocks to their first Canadian championship in 1955 said in a telephone interview he would definitely consider the position if an offer was made.

New Canucks

VANCOUVER (CP) — General manager Coley Hall of the Vancouver Canucks says he is negotiating for a centre and a right wing for added insurance that Canucks will hang onto first place in the Western Hockey League. He said the parent New York Rangers have promised to deliver Ron Howell, offered to Vancouver last month, within 10 days. A two-for-two player deal with Spokane Comets also is on the fire.

ORDERS ARMED FORCES SLASH

'Incredible Weapons'
Mr. K's Latest Boast

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev said today Russia has blueprinted such "incredible" weapons it can discharge one of every three men in its armed forces in the next year or two.

In a three-hour speech to the Supreme Soviet the premier painted this picture:

"Incredible weapons" are being designed by Soviet scientists. "The arms we already possess are formidable, and those which are, so to speak, about to appear, are even better, even more formidable."

"The weapons which are being designed and which, as one says, are in the portfolios of scientists and designers, are incredible weapons."

The Soviet Army has firepower that no other army ever has possessed. Rockets are taking the place of bombers and the production of bombers will cease. Production of industrial and consumer goods, together with labor productivity, increased last year more than the current seven-year plan called for. The United States is no longer the world's leading military power.

International tensions are lessening, and agreements are possible at the May summit meeting in Paris.

Khrushchev told the Supreme Soviet that Soviet armed forces are currently at 3,623,000, down from a high of 11,000,000 in wartime and nearly 6,000,000 in the 1949-55 period.

Now, he said, plans are for a cut to 2,423,000 men. As he projected it, this reduction of 1,200,000 from the current figure will be brought about without waiting for the Western powers to join the Soviet Union in a disarmament program. Disarmament talks are due to start at Geneva this Spring.

New Minister
Will Be Named

OTTAWA (CP) — Plans to create a new ministry of forests to help spur national development and extension of the federal franchise to Indians highlight the government's legislative program disclosed today for the new session of Parliament.

The new department will be concerned, the Throne Speech said, "with affairs relating to the forests of Canada and their most effective utilization and conservation, and to assume responsibility for other related resources."

Government sources said a separate minister would be appointed to administer the new department of government.

The program, announced in the Speech from the Throne, also signalled further steps in Northern development with an increase in responsibility for the territorial councils and new oil and gas regulations to encourage Canadian ownership of these far-North resources.

Federal participation in the Trans-Canada highway program, lagging in some provinces, will be extended beyond the present cut-off date of next Dec. 31. For old age pensioners and recipients of the veterans' allowance living outside of Canada, the government plans to ease the present restriction which, in the case of pensioners, requires them to live in Canada at least six months of the year to collect payments.

FIRST CEREMONY

The speech from the throne was read in the Senate chamber by Governor-General Georges P. Vanier, officiating at his first parliamentary ceremony since his installation last September.

The speech said Prime Minister Diefenbaker's proposed bill of rights will be introduced again. Last session he

Broken Dike

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands (Reuters) — A dike burst during a blizzard today, forcing the evacuation of all 15,000 citizens of an Amsterdam suburb.

Every available navy and civilian vessel raced into the flooded Tuindorp Cosizaan district and snatched men, women and children from the top floors of their almost submerged homes.

The area is reclaimed land lying several feet below a canal leading to the North Sea. By afternoon the breach had been widened to 75 yards. In the flooded streets only the tops of trapped buses and automobiles were visible.

A small armada of boats worked feverishly to evacuate all the marooned victims by nightfall.

Rescue workers struggled against a swift current to save soaked, shivering women carrying crying babies. Calls went out for more hands to help in the rescue operations. Many of the pitiful refugees clutched household pets and small personal belongings.

The Netherlands Red Cross Hospital ship Henri Dunant steamed to the scene to help in the mass evacuation.

HEAVY SNOW

Heavy snowfalls and slippery ice made the rescue work more difficult. icy winds swirled over the desolate scene.

Gas and electricity supplies were cut off by the floods.

Dutch navy dinghies, rafts and barges all joined in ferrying the population from their flooded houses to safety in Amsterdam.

Engineers at the dike fought a losing battle against the breach. They said the waters would pour through until they were level with the North Sea canal.

No casualties were reported but one official described the scene as a "miniature flood."

REORGANIZING NOT DISARMING

Less Men, More Machines

BY JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev is reorganizing rather than disarming.

His claims to disarmament, in fact, are substantially contradicted by his words about the growth of Russia's nuclear weapons and rocket power.

These points highlighted initial reaction in official quarters here today to Khrushchev's speech before the supreme Soviet.

His announcement of a manpower cut did not come as a surprise. Earlier remarks by Khrushchev — and the labor needs of Soviet industry and agriculture — had foreshadowed such a move.

Khrushchev claimed the manpower cut was a contribution to disarmament but at another point in his speech, Khrushchev said that since no agreement has been reached with the Western powers to stop production of nuclear weapons "we are compelled to continue this production."

In a third section he argued that "the Soviet army yields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

In other words, the manpower cut by Khrushchev's own testimony does not mean a cut in striking power. What it obviously signifies is a shift from reliance on masses of men to reliance on masses of machines and nuclear weapons.

His emphasis on disarmament is construed rather as a means of making propaganda out of necessity.

The necessity, authorities here said, arises from the fact that as a result of the loss in birth rate in the war, Russia is developing a manpower shortage.

Therefore the Soviet government needs to switch men from the armed forces to industry and agriculture whenever it can do so without impairing Soviet security.

Plan Would Halt Trains at Street Level Crossings

(From Duncan Bureau) Duncan city council will check the possibility of stopping trains at street-railroad crossings, instead of following the custom of having cars and trucks give way to the trains. Discussion arose at a special council meeting Wednesday, called to discuss traffic problems, when city engineer R. E. Potter was instructed to prepare plans for a third railway crossing in the city's business section.

"There are more cars than trains, so let's stop the trains," said Mayor Jack Dobson. "It has got to come, so let's get started on it."

The suggested crossing would be a westward extension of Coronation Avenue to connect with Ingram Street.

Other features of a program designed to improve all phases of traffic in the city are:

1. Stricter control of parking regulations.
2. Limitation of truck operations.
3. Construction of a first-class parking lot.

Both Ald. J. H. Saunders and J. J. Kerrone agreed that parking regulations on city streets are not being enforced, and that traffic inspection must be "speeded up." Ald. Kerrone suggested a motorcycle patrol within the city.

Council will arrange a meeting in the near future with ownership in that field.

Rocket to Probe Life on Planets

NICE, France (UPI) — Russia disclosed today it plans an attempt to send rockets toward Mars and Venus equipped with instruments to determine if there is life on those planets.

An official Soviet report presented to the first international space conference here by Soviet space expert Anatoly Biagonravov also announced prior plans for a new series of satellite launchings and moon shots.

It said that the Soviets, at a "later date," but still in the near future, would attempt to probe Mars and Venus with life-detecting instruments.

Biagonravov also said that the Soviet Union is engaged in "preparation for manned flight into outer space." But he indicated the preparations may take some time.

Chamber Wants Indian Lands For Industries

(From Duncan Bureau) Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce will seek a meeting with the federal Indian agent to discuss what Indian lands, if any, can be made available for commercial and industrial development.

The new industries committee of the chamber, headed by J. S. Lawrence, is working on a program to bring new industry and commercial business establishments to the Duncan area. Indian lands constitute the only property adjacent to the city suitable for such development.

The chamber will urge the federal fisheries department to carry out its next program of spawning research on the Cowichan River. The department is conducting a similar program on the Soaness River at present and members believe the Cowichan River is a far more important spawning ground.

A letter will be sent to the highways department complaining of the condition of the government portion of the Shawanigan Lake-Port Renfrew Road, described as in poor shape.

The department thanked the chamber for suggesting a shorter route for the Mill Bay-Brentwood ferry, but advised that the matter already is under consideration.

during the last year in which he assured the 1,300 deputies that Russia is ahead of all other countries in the development and assembly line production of intercontinental ballistic missiles of various types.

The premier said his government is able to cut its armed forces without hurting its defence potential because of the strength of its nuclear weapons.

"The Soviet Army wields such means of warfare and such firepower as no other army has ever had."

"Now it is quite clear," he told the applauding delegates, "that the United States of America is not the world's most powerful military power. We are not trying to sweat anybody, but these are the facts."

But the "total trend" in international affairs was one of lessening of tension. His agreement with Eisenhower, President de Gaulle and Prime Minister Macmillan to begin the first of a series of summit conferences in Paris May 6 was an important sign of this.

"We are deeply convinced that, having a mutual desire to settle all disputed questions, one may come to an agreement."
